IMPRISON SOLDIER 30 YEARS

Sergt. Flentje of Cambridge Sentenced at Camp Devens for Disloyal Utterances

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 13.—Thirty years at hard labor and to be dishonorably discharged from the service of the United States at the end of that time was the sentence imposed upon Sergeant Ernst L. Flentje of Cambridge by the court-martial which found him guilty of unpatriotic utterances and of disrespect to a superior officer.

The verdict was published here today and the finding was sustained by the reviewing authorities.

Flentje will serve his sentence at the United States Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Jay, N. Y. He was removed from the cantonment guardhouse to Fort Strong last week and will probably be taken to Fort Jay tomorrow.

Flentje was a sergeant in F Company of "Boston's Own." Almost at the last minute the prosecution sprung a surprise in the case by introducing a mysterious woman witness who testified behind closed doors and whose testimony is said to have played an important part in the decision.

Letters written by Flentje to a woman in Cambridge were also featured and were among the most damaging bits of evidence against him.

SLANDERED PRESIDENT.

Flentje was accused of violating the 62nd, 63rd and 96th articles of war, more than twenty specific complaints being outlined. Among some of the things the prisoner was accused of saying were, in effect: "The President sold out the United States in the Panama Canal deal. President Wilson is the laughing stock of Germany. The United States had no business to enter the war. If I ever have any children I hope they are born in Germany. The German soldiers will laugh themselves to death when they see this bunch opposing them. Everything the Germans have done in this war was justified, including the invasion of Belgium, the sinking of the Lusitania and the massacre of the Armenians by the Turks.

It was also charged that he said that "there is a barrel of jack in it for anyone who will blow up the Tampico oil fields."

Flentje, who is a son of the manufacturer of shock absorbers, was defended by Attorney Francis J. W. Ford, a member of the Boston City Council. The president of the court-martial was Colonel Charles C. Smith, commander of the "Old Colony" infantry regiment. Lieutenant John B. Cummings of Fall River was judge advocate, and the assistant judge advocate was Lieutenant Daniel W. Lincoln, a former representative of Worcester.

Flentje made a strong plea for acquittal. He asked the court to consider him only as a fool who had been talking too much.

Gas Kills South Boston Man

Frederick Coviello, thirty-eight, of Dorchester avenue, South Boston, was found dead in a gas-filled room early today. A gas cock was open and it is believed that death was accidental.

MORE GAINS IN STOCKS; STEEL COMMON 111 5-8

New York, May 13.—Further substantial gains were made in many stocks during the first hour, but the room traders continued to fight advances, and after high levels for the year were established fractional recessions were forced. Steel common sold as high as 111⅝, a gain of 2¼ points, and then reacted to 111¼. Republic Iron & Steel advanced to 90¾. Baldwin Locomotive, which closed on Saturday at 86⅝, advanced to 88⅝. Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies rose 2¾ to 111⅝. Anaconda was the strongest of the copper stocks, advancing 1½ to 69⅝, afterward reacting to 68⅝. The greatest gain of the morning was in American Sumatra, which rose 5½ points to 122. Union Pacific made a gain of ⅝ to 124⅛, and fractional advances were made in some of the other railroad issues. Liberty 4¼s sold off to a new low record of 98.04.

INTRUDER AT MAYOR'S HOME ALARMS FAMILY

The family of Mayor Peters were badly frightened today when an unidentified man called at the Peters residence in South street, Jamaica Plain, and attempted to force his way into the house. He declared that he must see the Mayor to discuss a matter of grave importance. When told that the Mayor was at City Hall he clared that he would obtain warrants and arrest the entire family. He was finally ejected and went away.

OTTAWA ARMY STORY PUZZLES LORD READING

By International News Service.

Washington, May 13.—The mystery created by the statement from Ottawa, attributed to the British War Cabinet, that the American army will not be utilized by the allies until it becomes "a complete and powerful force," was heightened this afternoon when Lord Reading, British ambassador, declared the statement "diametrically opposed to all information received by me."

Confessing himself quite in the dark" as to the origin of the statement, the ambassador issued a formal statement as follows:

"The statement attributed to the British War Cabinet to the effect that the allies are so confident that, having been given the choice of a small immediate army for defence or waiting until they are reinforced by a complete, powerful self-supporting American army, they have chosen the latter, is diametrically opposed to all information received by me from the British War Cabinet and to all the requests which I have been asked by them to make to the United States administration.

"I am quite in the dark as to the origin of the statement. At present all I can say is that I am convinced that the document has not been issued with the knowledge of the Prime Minister or the British War Cabinet."

Narrow Gauge Asks Right to Increase Fare to 7 Cents

The Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad, the narrow gauge line, today filed schedules with the Public Service Commission announcing its plan to raise fares, beginning June 7, to 7 cents over all parts of its system.

This would make the rate from Boston to Winthrop, Beachmont and Revere Beach stations seven cents and to Lynn fourteen cents.

The company's petition follows closely the Bay State's request for general increases over its lines.

There will be hearings on the project before the Public Service Commission assents to the increase in fares. The date for a hearing is not yet set.

A vigorous protest is expected from Revere and Winthrop, and especially Revere, which has been doubly hit, first by the Bay State and now by the narrow gauge.

"There's only one reason for the increase in fares," said President Melvin O. Adams of the Narrow Gauge company to the AMERICAN today. "We are not making money enough to pay expenses. The reason for that is the extraordinarily high cost of coal, labor and materials, and the extraordinarily low fares we have been giving as compared with the character of the service. There will be a public hearing, and that is what the public is principally interested in."

AIRMEN FINISH BOTTLING OF ZEEBRUGGE

By International News Service.

London, May 13.—The bottling up of the German submarine base at Zeebrugge has been made complete by effective work by British airmen on Sunday.

Bombs were dropped at the entrance to the harbor, directly hitting and sinking a German dredge boat between two obsolete cruisers that had formerly been sunk in the Fairway.

Photographs taken by British airmen show that the basins of the Bruges Canal are crowded with German craft of all descriptions. They have been prevented from continuing their voyages because of the blocking of the entrances of the Ostend and Zeebrugge harbors.

The dredger was attempting to dig a hole beneath the sunken British cruisers Iphigenia and Intrepid, into which they would fall when blown up.

UKRAINIAN DIVISIONS DISARMED BY GERMANY

Zurich, May 13.—The Germans have disarmed Ukrainian divisions, formed out of prisoners, and are disarming Polish garrisons as well, according to a Cracow dispatch to an Austrian newspaper.

SUPREME EFFORT OF HUNS NEAR

Rome, May 13.—"After an intense bombardment the enemy attacked our new positions in the sector of Coll Del Orso, but was obliged to retire with heavy losses," the Italian War Office announces. "Elsewhere there was the usual artillery activity."

By FLOYD MacGRIFF,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, May 13.—The predicted double drive on the western and Italian battle fronts, which may result from the conference of the Kaiser and Emperor Charles of Austria at German Great Headquarters, probably will be the greatest blow of the war, according to advices from Amsterdam today.

The supreme Austro-German effort is to be concentrated on these fronts, it was stated.

The Fremdenblatt of Berlin interprets the meeting as meaning that Austria and Germany are resolved to stick together to the end.

On the other hand, a dispatch from Vienna, by way of Zurich, quoted the German newspaper Frankfurter Zeitung as making the following comment upon the trip of Baron Burian, the Austrian Foreign Minister, to German headquarters:

"The negotiations will decide the future relations of Austria and Germany. It is understood there will be negotiations for a new alliance together with military and customs unions, requiring a two-thirds majority in the Reichsrath. It is doubtful, however, if it could be attained.

"The great Austrian question now is whether continued existence of a separate Austrian state is possible. The southern Slav-German provinces deny such a possibility. One party desires to see the state consist of small sovereign provinces, each having a foreign policy of its own; the other demands a return to the German federation. The outcome is uncertain."

Violent Bombardment of British Positions

London, May 13.—German artillery continues to bombard the British positions with great violence in various sectors, but so far there have been no further infantry assaults against them.

UTONIC RULERS PLAN DOUBLE DRIVE IN ITALY AND THE WEST

"Hostile artillery was active during the night in the Somme valley and in the Albert sector, as well as in the area between Locon and Nieppe forest," the War Office announced today.

(The Somme and Albert sectors are on the Picardy front, opposite Amiens, while the district between Locon and Nieppe forest is about midway on the Flanders front.)

"The artillery on both sides was active at several points north and south of the Avre River (Picardy battle front)," the French War Office announced today.

"We penetrated the German lines north of Nomeny, capturing twenty prisoners.

"The enemy attempted a raid in the region of St. Die, but it broke down under our fire.

"Elsewhere the night was calm."

Belgian troops raided a German position north of Dixmude (Flanders front) said an official statement issued by the Belgian War Office at Havre. There is artillery activity of varying intensity along the Belgian front.

German Preparations Indicate Most Terrific Drive Yet Attempted

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

The Germans are making stronger artillery preparation for a renewal of their drive on the Picardy and Flanders battle fronts than they have in any one of the preceding grand offensives on the various battle fronts.

This circumstance, coupled with the continued lull in the big allied infantry operations, shows that the Germans are coming to fear more and more the strength of General Foch's allied armies and the strength of the positions that must be stormed before the Germans can advance their lines any farther towards Amiens and the channel coast.

LAST DRIVE A DEFEAT.

It has been over two weeks since the German offensive but for the

the Germans launched any great attacks on the Flanders front, while nearly three weeks have elapsed since the last big German assault on the Picardy line.

The last grand assault on the Flanders front ended in an ignominious defeat for the German armies that were trying to break through the hill positions held by the Anglo-French armies southeast of Arras. That was on April 29.

On the Picardy front the Germans made their last big effort on April 24, when they attacked over a thirteen-mile front east of Amiens and took by storm the battle-wrecked village of Villers-Bretonneux. Their triumph was short-lived, for the British attacked on the following day and recaptured the village.

BRITISH LINES ADVANCED

(Villers-Bretonneux, which is still held by the British, is about nine miles east of Amiens on the road that runs due eastward from the British base through Proyart, Brie and Vermand. In fact operations on that zone the British have advanced their lines a number of times since April 25.

Since the breakdown of the German operations late in April the big guns have been roaring all along the two battle zones. There have been some small infantry operations, but all have been local in character. Practically all of them have resulted to the advantage of the British and French. Where the Germans succeeded in gaining ground they were quickly thrown back by the allies.

At the present time the allies hold the initiative and are prepared to give blow for blow, no matter how hard the Teutons may strike.

WAIT FOR AUSTRIANS.

The report is again current that Germany is waiting for the Austro-Hungarian armies to strike in Italy before recommencing the drive in France. In this connection a dispatch from Amsterdam today said that the Kaiser and the Austrian Emperor were conferring at German great headquarters upon the question of a simultaneous offensive in the west and southwestern theaters of war.

This was the fifty-fourth day of the German drive in France and has continued to bombard with great

With the American Army in France, May 13.—Three Americans in the Lonsville sector crossed No Man's Land with the object of cleaning out an enemy sniper's nest, from which several Americans had been killed.

They encountered a German officer and twelve men and, despite the odds, attacked them, killing the officer and four of the men. They took the officer's papers and retired as German reinforcements were coming up. The papers contained the enemy's code and other valuable information.

Upon the return of the three, a patrol of twenty-five men crossed No Man's Land to engage the Germans. The result is not yet known.

past few weeks it has been resolved into a big gun offensive.

Teutonic Artillery Keeping Italians Busy in the Monastir Region

Paris, May 13.—The artillery of the Teutonic allies on the Macedonian front has been violently shelling positions of the Italian troops at Hill No. 1050 (in the Monastir sector), the Serbian War Office reported in a communique dealing with Balkan operations.

The Bulgar-German forces attempted a surprise attack near Vetrenik, but were repulsed.

Serbian and British airmen have bombed cantonments at Seres and the Amatovo station.

There have been artillery duels on the Struma River, west of the Vardar, at the bend of the Tcherna River and near Monastir.

Ypres and Arras Probable Objectives of New German Drive

By International News Service.

London, May 13.—The news from the Western front indicates we are on the eve of great events," says the Evening News today. "Our scouts know that the enemy concentrations is nearing their completion."

For upwards of two weeks allied airmen and other observers have reported much activity behind the German lines, while the German artillery fury scattered sectors along the Picardy and Flanders battle fronts.

Von Hindenburg's divisions were badly shattered in the fighting southeast of Ypres and east of Amiens late in April, and it was expected that considerable time would elapse before he would be in a position to renew his double thrusts.

It is now indicated, however, that German guns and troops, some of which have been shifted at night to avoid detection, are in place for the most part and that the Teutons are about ready to strike. Just where the blows will fall cannot be foretold.

Some European military experts have predicted that they would be launched against the Anglo-French lenght positions southwest of Ypres, while others have contended that they would come around Arras. It is generally accepted as a fact that the Germans will begin their offensive on the two fronts either simultaneously or at about the same time. The strategy of this action would be the prevention of shifts of troops from one zone to reinforce the allied armies on the other.

Counter Revolution Is Imminent in Russia; Premier Lenine Alarmed

By International News Service.

London, May 13.—"Counter revolution is beginning to raise its head in Russia, turning discontented and starving peasants against Bolshevism," said a news agency dispatch from Moscow today, quoting Nicolai Lenine, the Bolshevik premier. Lenine's statement was issued in a telegram sent broadcast and appealing for relief for famine-stricken Petrograd. Moscow papers have been suspended for antagonistic statements against the Soviet and such newspapers are being prosecuted, it was added, including an organ of the working men.

His father is editor of the Sunday Post, Boston. Besides his parents Mr. Wingate is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Dana Wingate, and by two sisters. He graduated from Harvard in 1914.

ROXBURY MAN ARRESTED UNDER ESPIONAGE ACT

John J. Ballam of Rand place, Roxbury, was arrested today, charged with making remarks in violation of the Espionage Act. He was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes, pleaded not guilty and was held in $5,000 for a continued hearing on May 20. Ballam, it is said, is alleged to have made the remarks in question at the Columbus Street Opera House Sunday afternoon, February 3, was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal Mackey, a cigar factory where he is employed.

DOUBT SALE OF U. S. SUPPLIES TO GERMANY

Washington, May 13.—Officials today expressed doubt of reports brought to a Pacific port by returning travelers from Russia that munitions shipped from the United States via Vladivostok were being sold by Russian officials at Moscow to Germany. It was stated that the latest official reports showed that the enormous supplies of munitions which had been landed at Vladivostok were still there.

ASK INCREASED RATE ON HIDES FROM BOSTON

Washington, May 13. — Increases ranging from fifteen cents to $1.85 in the rates on rawhide from New York city to Halifax, Edmonton and Winnipeg, and from seventy cents to $1.70 between Boston and Winnipeg, were applied for by all lines operating between these points, in a petition filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

PAWTUCKET MAN FINED $50 FOR AUTO SMASH

Judge Merritt, in the West Roxbury police court, today imposed a fifty-dollar fine upon Theodoros Kostokopoulos, twenty-seven, of Spencer street, Pawtucket, R. I., for recklessly operating an automobile at the corner of Washington and Green streets, Jamaica Plain. The limousine was hurled on its side against a lamp post.

MISSING DORCHESTER GIRL AT LEICESTER

Miss Margaret C. Fisherty, 18, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Fisherty of No. 44 Bellevue street, Dorchester, who has been missing from her home since the last of April, has been found in Leicester, just outside of Worcester, where she has been employed for a time. She has communicated with her parents regarding her whereabouts and is expected that it will be only a short time before she is back in Dorchester.

SWITCHING SMASH KILLS BOSTON & MAINE MAN

Bellows Falls, Vt., May 13.—George S. Angell, a brakeman on a B. & M. switcher in the local railroad yard, was instantly killed today. He was with the switching crew and was caught between a car and an car loaded with coal and crushed to death. He leaves a wife and two sons. He was a member of Company M, Vermont Militia.

CONSTANTINE'S FAMILY CALLED TO BEDSIDE

Paris, May 12. — The Paris Petit Journal's Zurich correspondent states that former King Constantine of Greece is suffering from inflammation of the intestines. His condition became so alarming that the royal family was summoned to the bedside.

URGES FANEUIL HALL AS LOAN INSIGNIA

Whose turn next as the official insignia for the Fourth Liberty Loan?

Faneuil Hall, Boston's world-famous "cradle of liberty"?

This suggestion, with the approval of Mayor Andrew J. Peters, has been made to Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo.

The suggestion calls for Faneuil Hall to be shown on Liberty loan bunting, posters, placards and even on the certificates in the Fourth Liberty Loan. It also calls for the following slogan:

"Rock the World in the Cradle of Liberty."

New York and the Statue of Liberty had their turns.

So did Philadelphia and the Liberty Bell.

Boston and Faneuil Hall next—why not?

BOSTON MAN'S SUGGESTION

The Faneuil Hall insignia plan was suggested to Mayor Peters by William H. McMasters of the advertising department of the Boston AMERICAN, who is vice-chairman in charge of publicity of the Ward Five Third Liberty Loan committee.

Faneuil Hall is in Precinct Nine of Ward Five. This precinct produced $5,000,000 subscribed to the first Third Liberty Loan. Their subscriptions amounted to more than $3,250,000.

The splendid showing of the Faneuil Hall precinct was right in line with Boston's own record in the third loan. This city not only oversubscribed its quota, but attained a higher percentage of oversubscription than any other city in its population class (500,000 or over).

It was in Faneuil Hall that an enthusiastic Liberty Loan, arranged by the Boston AMERICAN, was held.

INDORSED BY PETERS.

Mayor Peters wrote a letter to Secretary McAdoo indorsing the Faneuil Hall idea. He also gave Mr. McMasters a personal letter to the secretary. Mr. McAdoo was ill when Mr. McMasters arrived in Washington. Detailed memorandum, giving the Faneuil Hall idea and suggestions for working it out for Liberty Loan publicity, was left with Mr. Cooksey, assistant to Mr. McAdoo. Different methods for working out the Faneuil Hall idea include the following:

1—Motif engraving on bonds, buttons, posters, car cards, newspaper advertising, Hill-head and so on to carry reproduction of Faneuil Hall.

2—Certificates of subscription to Fourth Loan to have reproduction of Faneuil Hall and a special inscription by President Wilson.

3—President Wilson to be invited to open the Fourth Loan drive with a speech at Faneuil Hall. His speech could be prepared by interested loan committees in the big cities.

4—Replicas of Faneuil Hall on rockers could be shipped on trucks for brief stops throughout the country during the drive. These models of Faneuil Hall would give loan speakers splendid inspiration.

5—For supplementary distribution—a cut-out cardboard reproduction of Faneuil Hall, on rockers, bearing this slogan:

FOURTH LIBERTY LOAN
BUY A BOND AND HELP ROCK THE WORLD IN THE CRADLE OF LIBERTY

For the Fourth Liberty Loan button it is suggested that the patriotic emblem bear a picture of Faneuil Hall, with the words "Fourth Liberty Loan" above and the main "Rock the World" line of the slogan underneath.

All these decorative suggestions, of course, are merely given as an illustration of the patriotic and publicity possibilities of the Faneuil Hall opportunity. Artists could develop these indefinitely.

Faneuil Hall is one of the "strategic points" on our national field of patriotism.

More than 100,000 persons visit the hall in a year, in addition to those who attend rallies and other gatherings in its historic auditorium.

The structure is known around the civilized world. It is one of our greatest national temples. Faneuil Hall would help send the Fourth Liberty Loan "over the top" with a rush.

GOV. WHITMAN SIGNS THE ANTI-LOAFER BILL

Albany, N. Y., May 13.—Governor Whitman today signed the Robertson anti-loafer bill. Under its provisions all able-bodied males between the ages of 18 and 50 must be habitually or regularly employed in some useful business, profession or occupation until the termination of the war with Germany.

ASKS ABOUT GERMAN OWNERSHIP IN THE U. S.

Amsterdam, May 13.—The German Socialist deputy, Sudekem, has presented a question to the Reichstag, asking whether German munitions manufacturers are interested in a certain large munition works in Philadelphia, and if so, what action the Chancellor proposes to take, said a dispatch from Berlin today.

2 Quarts of "Bottled Bait" Permitted Maine Fishers

Sanford, Me., May 13. — All fishermen who believe in the efficacy of "bottled bait," were overjoyed today to learn that the ban imposed last Fall has been lifted.

Hereafter followers of Isaac Walton, who like to whip the lakes and streams of Maine, with a bottle of their favorite brand close at hand, will be allowed to have two quarts in all in them.

This was learned when a man before the local court on a charge of drunkenness declared that country officials had informed him he might carry two quarts without being molested. Investigation confirmed his story. It being learned that a country officials assumed a man having only that amount would not care to sell it.

BAKER SUBMITS BILL FOR WAR DECORATIONS

By International News Service.

Washington, May 13.—Secretary of War Baker this afternoon submitted to Congress a comprehensive bill to be substituted for all pending legislation providing for the award of decorations to America's war heroes. The new measures would authorize the President to award "medals of honor," "distinguished service crosses" and distinguished service medals."

Under the provisions of the bill "medals of honor would be presented by the President, in the name of Congress, only to officers and enlisted men, who, in action involving actual conflict with an enemy, distinguish themselves conspicuously by gallantry and intrepity at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty."

"Distinguished service crosses" would be awarded by the President, "but not in the name of Congress," to any person who, while serving in any capacity in the army since the United States entered the war, "has distinguished, or who shall hereafter distinguish himself or herself by extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy."

The bill provides that "distinguished service medals" shall be awarded by the President, "but not in the name of Congress," to any person serving in any capacity in the army, who has, or who shall hereafter distinguish himself or herself by exceptional meritorious service to the government in a duty of great responsibility in time of war or in connection with military operations against an armed enemy."

The decorations carry with them slight increases in pay.

TO OFFER PRAYERS FOR MEN IN THE ARMY

A nine days' novena is being conducted in St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, in honor of the Holy Ghost. The novena has been arranged so that the parishioners may have an opportunity to offer up special prayers for the men who are in the service of the country.

ASKS STATE TO PAY 'CHARLIE' CHAPLIN $118

The House Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature today was asked to appropriate $118 in payment for service rendered by "Charlie" Chaplin.

It appears that in July, 1915, when the "Blue" and "Gray" armies of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia were manoeuvring in Essex County, and suffered the loss of a considerable quantity of materials during unusual severe storms, some of the detachments found quarters on the Chaplin farm in East Boxford.

Chaplin put in his claim for compensation to Colonel Frank Graves, then commander of the Ninth Regiment, and after long delay the approved claim reached the Adjutant-General's Department, only to find that no funds were available for the purpose. Hence the appeal to the Legislature.

"Charlie is not a motion-picture actor, or he wouldn't be here asking for money. He is a poor farmer of Essex County, and if he gets the money the state owes him he will probably put it into the campaign to raise foodstuffs for the war," said Representative Arthur L. Nason of Haverhill, who appeared today as the sole proponent of the bill.

SHAKESPEARE CLASS TO HOLD MAY BREAKFAST

The Shakespeare Class of the Thursday Fortnightly Club, composed of well known Dorchester women, will hold its annual May breakfast on Friday at noon at Riverbank Court. The program will consist of readings and songs from Shakespeare. Mrs. Alice P. Bates is chairman, assisted by the following committee: Mrs. Maude W. Johnson, Mrs. Helen M. Jacobs, Mrs. Bertha S. Davis, Mrs. Violet F. Cutter, Mrs. Margaret E. Quincy and Mrs. Helen F. Richardson.

USE MOTOR BANK TO PAY U. S. TROOPS ABROAD

New York, May 13.—The Guaranty Trust Company has placed a motor bank in service. This will establish facilities to aid the United States government in paying its troops in or near the firing line. The trust company has a Paris office which is the United States depository. This acts in France as a paying and receiving agent for the United States government and other American distributing offices of the army and navy.

BUYS LIBERTY BONDS FOR HIS EMPLOYES

A. L. Gardiner of No. 28 Alpha road, Dorchester, proprietor of the Royal Manufacturing Company, Summer street, not alone showed his patriotic sense of duty, but his generosity in the Third Liberty Loan campaign when he purchased ninety Liberty bonds at $50 each and presented one to each of his employes.

1,000 TONS OF GRAIN IN BERLIN GRANARY FIRE

Paris, May 13.—The Berlin municipal granaries near Grossbeeren have been destroyed by fire with the loss of 20,000 quintos of grain, according to a dispatch from the Zurich correspondent of the Paris Petit Journal.

SIX BILLIONS TO BE SPENT ON HEAVY GUNS

By International News Service.

Washington, May 13.—An estimate of $6,000,000,000 to be expended during the next twelve months for heavy ordnance was submitted to the House Appropriations Committee this afternoon by Brigadier-General J. D. Hartetts, acting chief of Coast Artillery.

The appropriation asked is in addition to the $15,000,000,000 estimate submitted to the Military Affairs Committee by Secretary Baker. The money will be spent for heavy guns for use on the Western front and for coast fortifications.

The major part will be expended for great guns to protect American soldiers abroad. These will not be available until one year after the contracts are let, General Barrett told the committee.

His explanations of how the money will be expended were amplified by the chief of engineers, General Black.

BOSTON CONCERN WARNED BY TRADE COMMISSION

Washington, May 13.—Complaint was made today by the Federal Trade Commission against the Pennsylvania Specialty Company of Philadelphia and the Advance Paint Company of Indianapolis. They are charged with giving gratuities to employes of customers as an inducement to them to influence their employers to deal with the respondent companies. The commission today ordered the Standard Varnish Works of New York and the Warren Soap Manufacturing Company of Boston to refrain from such practices.

WOMAN BATTALION OF DEATH LEADER FLEES; ARRIVES IN AMER

ESCAPES BOLSHEVIK CHEFS

Madame Batchkareva, Ready to Die for Justice, Now on Her Way to France

By International News Service.

A Pacific Port, May 13.—After escaping from Bolshevik pursuers, who had offered a price for her capture, dead or alive, Mme. Leona Batchkareva, who was senior captain of Russia's famous "Battalion of Death," has arrived at an American port.

Mme. Batchkareva is enroute to France, where she will offer her services to the allies.

"I am ready to die on the field of honor," she said.

With a price on her head, the woman soldier was smuggled out of Moscow by friends of the Kerensky regime and taken to Vladivostok over the Trans-Siberian Railway.

Bolshevik troops, learning of her escape, set out in pursuit and the woman disguised herself first as a peasant woman and later as a man.

DAUGHTER WITH HER.

Arriving at Vladivostok, she took refuge on a British ship with her daughter, who had joined her, but shortly afterward the two were taken aboard a second vessel, and on this they were brought to the United States.

Mme. Batchkareva won fame when she helped organize the "Battalion of Death," composed entirely of Russian women, and fought with them through many battles against the Germans. When the Kerensky government lost control most of the women soldiers refused to recognize the Bolsheviki.

"I intend to give my services in any capacity in which the Allies can use them," the woman soldier told reporters.

"I formed the Battalion of Death to avenge my husband who was killed by the Germans, and to save Russia.

LED BY FALSE 'PROPHETS.'

"The powers in my country have listened to the voices of false prophets. When they finally see the light, as they will, Holy Russia's enemies will be crushed into the dust."

Mme. Batchkareva told how, after she escaped from Moscow, she was arrested a little town in Siberia and held for three days, at the end of which time she was allowed to go on the strength of her story that she was the peasant wife of a Bolshevik.

The woman soldier, who under Kerensky was given the honorary title of colonel, said that Premier Kerensky's government feared her and succeeded in turning the members of her own battalion against her.

"The Bolsheviki knew my influence and feared it," she declared. "They worked against me among my own soldiers, and members of my Battalion of Death, and my women comrades one day turned upon me. They attacked me and injured me so severely that I had to be sent to a hospital for several weeks."

Upon her release from the hospital she learned that the Bolshevik government had decided to dispose of her and it was then that she enlisted the aid of loyal friends and escaped.

Mme. Batchkareva is tall and has a true military bearing. Her hair is cut short like a man's.

INSANITY PLEA BY WOMAN WHO SLEW WIFE

By International News Service.

Waukesha, Wis., May 13.—In the courthouse here today lawyers and jurymen prepared to dissect in the cold light of jurisprudence the emotions that led Miss Grace Lusk, psychology teacher, to slay Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts, wife of Dr. David Roberts and the woman who stood between Miss Lusk and the man she loved—Dr. Roberts.

Miss Lusk went on trial for murder after weeks of waiting while she was recovering from two bullet wounds, self inflicted, shortly after she shot Mrs. Roberts.

From the far corners of Waukesha county 150 talesmen were called as veniremen to be examined as jurors to hear the remarkable story of love gone mad.

Just as soon as the jury is selected there will begin a new revelation of the spectacular story.

CALL PSYCHOLOGISTS.

No detail of the weird narrative will be omitted. Witnesses have been summoned to tell the story of Grace Lusk's life, and alienists, psychologists and physiologists will present what is predicted will be sensational testimony.

Counsel for the defence will make their defence on the grounds of "insanity." It is reported that their chief worry is the attitude of their client toward the lawn made by man. They will send her to the asylum for the second attempt at commiting. It is understood they will make no effort to govern her behavior as a witness.

Grace Lusk will go on the stand and attempt to defend her own strange code of morals against the unbending code of the law. Her lawyers with it made clear that the "insanity" defence has no association with the adjective "temporary" or "emotional."

INSANE THEN AND NOW.

They will contend that Miss Lusk was insane on the day of the shooting and is insane now.

Under the Wisconsin laws, which have no provison for capital punishment, a verdict of "not guilty" on the grounds asked by the defence automatically would sentence Miss Lusk to the state asylum for the insane.

Against this plea the prosecution, Prosecutor S. D. Tullar has planned a savage attack. He prepared to read in court the writings of Miss Lusk, in which she inscribes her rules of living. By such words he will attempt to show that the slaying was a cold-blooded, deliberate crime.

GUARDS MUST HAVE ARMY EXPERIENCE

The enlisted strength of the United States Guards, to be organized in the Northeastern department, will be obtained from the ranks of men from other organizations, it is officially announced by Lieutenant Colonel Albert B. Williams, adjutant of the Northeastern department.

Few men will be enlisted at the Army recruiting station but the Guards will be made up of men who are unfitted for the hardships of regular warfare. What men are enlisted must have some military experience, but most of the men will be transferred from other army units.

WOMAN DENTIST IS LIEUTENANT'S BRIDE

Dr. Rose Moskow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boncion Moskow of No. 33 Angell avenue, Dorchester, was married at her home to Lieutenant John Appleburn, assistant surgeon at Rumkin Island, by Rabbi Ularick of Cambridge. On their return from a honeymoon trip he will again take up his duties at Rumkin Island, and the bride will practice dentistry. The bride is a graduate of the Tufts Dental School, 1918. Lieutenant Appleburn graduated Dorchester, was medical School in 1916, and later served as instructor in anatomy in the dental school, where he first met Dr. Moskow. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Appleburn of No. 43 Greenock street, Dorchester.

ROOSEVELT HERE GETS BARRACKS PROTEST

Cambridge Citizens Present Alternative Location for Radio School

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is expected to end the controversy over the use of Cambridge Common as a site for naval barracks, arrived at Harvard University today.

Mr. Roosevelt found a committee of citizens, including Judge Robert Waiont, Attorney H. Blackall, John Noles and George H. Carrick, awaiting him at University Hall. They represented the Harvard Square Business Men's Association and wished to present two alternative locations for the barracks.

The assistant secretary promised to confer with the committee later. He then visited the Radio School and later dined at the Harvard Club with Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commandant of the First Naval District.

In the afternoon Mr. Roosevelt was scheduled to attend a meeting of the Harvard board of overseers, of which he is a member. Following the meeting the overseers were to inspect the Germanic and Peabody Museums, while Mr. Roosevelt visited the Fore River and Squantum shipbuilding plants. If time permitted, he intended to make a brief visit to the naval desintion camp at Deer Island, leaving the city this evening for Washington.

MAN IS BURNED TO DEATH IN 3-ALAM FIRE

James Murray, forty, of No. 1984 Washington street, a washer employed by the Brown Garage & Carriage Company, No. 70 Brimmer street, was burned to death early today in a three-alarm fire which swept the building.

About 100 automobiles stored on the upper floors were destroyed by the blaze, which is believed to have started from spontaneous combustion in a rubber automobile carburetor. The damage was estimated by the fire department at $75,000.

Murray's badly burned body was found on the fourth floor of the structure, which extends from Chestnut street to Byron, by Cornelius Sullivan of Ladder 1.

The fire created a panic among the occupants of the fashionable dwellings in the neighborhood, who fled to the street in scanty attire and refused to return to their homes though reassured by the firemen in charge.

There were about 160 cars stored in the building when the fire broke out, but all, estimated at more than two-thirds of these were destroyed, while the remainder were damaged by smoke and water.

SEAMAN WHO BEAT OFF U-BOAT IS COMMENDED

Washington, May 13. — Secretary Daniels has sent a letter of commendation to Elmer Dinnes Arnold, who, as chief boatswain's mate, directed the gun crews aboard the S. S. Chincha in beating off an attack by a German submarine on the afternoon of March 21.

When the submarine was sighted efforts were made to change the ship's course and escape, but the U-boat had the range of the steamer and shells began exploding about the vessel's stern. Two men were killed. Arnold's gun crew fired eight shots and the submarine suddenly submerged and gave no evidence of further activity.

Arnold enlisted at Indianapolis, September 8, 1915.

DYING MAN 'ARRAIGNED' FOR WALTHAM KILLING

Four men were arraigned in Waltham today, and a fifth, who is dying in the Waltham Hospital, was technically arraigned on charges of murder in connection with the shooting last night of Vincenzo Catoni, fifty-five, of Pleasant street, Watertown. The men arraigned, who are John Sweeney, forty-five, of Church Hill street, Watertown, wounded and in the hospital, and Joe Andrea, Precoil Marsina, Dominic Perillo and Patsy Catoni, were held without bail till June 3. Forgori and Marsina have knife wounds. The men got into an argument with Catoni at a house in Bacon street, Watertown, it is alleged.

HAD POLICE BADGE AND INSULTED WOMAN

New York, May 13.—Miss Jessie Taylor, a model, of No. 132 West Forty-seventh street caused the arrest of Detective Jeremy Reilly, a policeman, according to Miss Taylor, spoke to her on Forty-second street. When Miss Taylor protested, she said, he displayed a police badge. "He informed me he was one of Assistant District Attorney Dewey's staff," Miss Taylor said, "and that he was going to look out for me. He threatened my freedom if I would give him $10. Instead I called a policeman."

12 FINED $10 FOR COCK FIGHT; 3 ASSESSED $15

Three men who, in Salem district court today, pleaded not guilty to a charge that they were present at a cockerby cock fight yesterday, fared worse than the twelve others who admitted having been there, for Judge Sears fined the three $15 each and the others $10 each. Two dead birds taken at the main were introduced as evidence. The scene of the affair was in Wood lane, near the Beverly and Wenham lines, and the spectators went there in their automobiles.

5 PARLIAMENTS ARE PROPOSED FOR BRITAIN

Laborite Believes Separate Bodies Needed to Solve Irish and Post-Bellum Problems

By International News Service.

London, May 13.—George N. Barnes, Labor member of the war cabinet, has outlined a federal home rule scheme with five separate parliaments in the British Isles, including an imperial parliament for the United Kingdom.

According to Mr. Barnes' plan, the law-making bodies would be established in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, not counting the imperial parliament that would be established for the United Kingdom.

Mr. Barnes, in outlining his proposition, said he believed separate parliaments on the United States Assembly plan would be necessary, not only to settle the Irish problem, but the social and industrial problems that will follow the end of the war.

The scheme was made public by Mr. Barnes in an address made at the welcome to the British labor delegation that has just returned from America. The same meeting constituted a farewell to the American labor mission which has been visiting England and France.

GUNS STOP IN CHINA WHEN NEUTRALS APPEAR

New York, May 13.—So chivalrous are the opposing armies in China that they quit firing if a neutral gets between the firing lines. Father James A. Walsh of the Catholic Foreign Missionary Society said that in Kwang Tung provinces recently he profited by this chivalry. With China in revolution, he said, millions of dollars worth of American industry has been suspended. The country's crying need is a strong central government.

HALTS INCREASE IN POSTAL RATES

Amendment to Revenue Bill Would Postpone Second-Class Zone Schedule

Washington, May 13.—Suspension of the new postal rates for second-class matter appeared likely in the Senate today. Senator Watson of Indiana was ready to offer an amendment to the revenue bill which would suspend the establishment of zone rates for second-class matter from July 1, 1918, to July 1, 1919. Although Postmaster-General Burleson has vigorously opposed any suspension of the rates, the pressure which has been brought to bear upon the members of the Senate has borne weight, and there is considrable support for Senator Watson's amendment.

Newspaper publishers have vigorously opposed the zone rates for second-class matter and have been given hearings for the past two weeks before the Senate Committee on Post-offices and Post Roads. The contention of the newspaper publishers is that the zone rates place an unfair burden upon their business, and that in many instances it will decrease circulation or cause increases in advertising rates which may cause disturbance in the business world. They also contend that the establishing of zones will limit the circulation of newspapers to restricted territories and will in a measure restrict the free press of the country.

The Postoffice Department claimed that the new rates are necessary, as it was shown by financial statements that second-class matter is now handled at a loss. It was also argued that, with the war burden placed on the mails, there is need for additional revenue, and Postmaster-General Burleson believes that second-class matter should furnish it.

Suspension would allow time to work out rates more favorable to all concerned. This is the argument which Senator Watson offered in support of his amendment.

$1,000 ADDED TO DEVENS FUND AT PAGEANT

Performance at Arena Proves Big Success—Total Will Reach Nearly $5,000

Nearly 2,000 people were present at the pageant and carnival at the Boston Arena which formed the final benefit performance for the Boston AMERICAN'S Camp Devens Baseball Fund.

The receipts of the performance which will be devoted to the fund were nearly $1,000. The exact amount cannot be announced for a few days as certain necessary expenses will have to be deducted from the total. As soon as these bills are all in and paid the exact amount of net gain to the baseball fund will be announced in the AMERICAN.

Similarly, the exact total of the money which will be turned over to Lieutenant Robert C. Deming for the baseball fund cannot be stated today as there are several amounts collected in different places yet to be officially placed on the list.

FIRST ASKED FOR $2,000.

This much is sure, however. The men of the Seventy-sixth Division at Camp Devens will have every reason to feel that New England is behind them in every way now that the appeal has turned over to the athletic fund.

The original amount asked for by Major-General Harry L. Hodges to build a grandstand at Camp Devens for the use of the men there was $2,000. This sum would have erected a grandstand inasmuch as the lumber will be furnished at cost and the labor is to be free.

General Hodges wrote a letter to the AMERICAN in which he asked this paper to take up the matter and "ask the people of New England to subscribe this amount."

Before the matter had been before the people two weeks nearly the whole $2,000 asked for had been subscribed. It then seemed best to those who were promoting the fund, if that were the limit of the people, to allow them to give more and build a stand that would be a credit to the camp and equip it with dressing rooms, shower baths and other accommodations for athletic teams.

MAXIMUM EASILY REACHED.

The maximum was accordingly boosted to $5,500. It came in without the slightest trouble.

The money then seemed to be to stop people from contributing rather than to urge them to do so, and finally last Saturday was set as the date when the committee for the fund would cease and the final benefit performance at the Arena was scheduled as the big feature to the end.

The result is that within a few days, when the accountants have cleaned up all the business of the affair, the sum of nearly $5,000 will have been contributed to the Camp Devens Baseball Fund.

The AMERICAN wishes to thank the people of New England on behalf of the men of the Seventy-sixth for what they have given to this fund. It is a fine thing to do, and the fund is a case of doing something for the men in khaki this section can be proud to come through with substantial.

Thanks are due to Mr. Robert Weeks of the Liberty Loan Committee who, in the midst of the busy Liberty Loan drive, found time to enlist the aid of 30 friends who personally pledged enough money to buy the grandstand which was then on the Common. This stand was taken down and transported up to the cantonment where it is being set up and will afford several hundred more seats overflow of the big stand to be built there.

MAY FESTIVAL REPEATED.

The success of Saturday night's performance is largely attributable to the generosity and hard work of Mrs. W. S. Butler, who repeated her May Festival for the occasion. Mrs. Lilla Viles Wyman who trained the children and Mr. W. Harry Baker who, for several weeks has been working hard to get this performance into shape.

The Boy Scouts of America, the Girl Scouts, who performed with great excellence, are also deserving of much credit, and thanks are due to Mme. Alberta Wright Calvert, who sang the "Star Spangled Banner" in the waving of 1,200 flags in the hands of the Scouts.

Others who helped out at the benefit are: Governor Samuel McCall and the Camp Devens Band; Mrs. Loomis, her assistants and the Girl Scouts; Mr. Loomis, Mr. Roche and the Boy Scouts, as well as the many others who assisted in the performance; Fred L. Archer of the Morin Company; Mr. W. Harry Baker who made the sale of Moxie to the fund; C. H. Hood of H. P. Hood & Sons; Harry Quint, Quint & Fallon Lunch Company, who saw that the boys and girls were ready for refreshments; Mr. Vincent Club; Oliver Ditson Company, Orrin Champlain, the Filene Company, Jordan Marsh Company, Columbia Phonograph Company, C. E. Osgood Company, Andrew Pinch of Brooks, the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company, which assisted in the publicity campaign, and last but not least the patrons and patronesses, who, by their ready response, especially financially, assured the success of the undertaking.

FATHER PUZZLED BY REPORTS ABOUT SON

Providence, R. I., May 13.—Private Harvey S. Fryer, twenty-seven, reported missing in France, has cabled his father "Am doing well." He conducted a drygoods store in Pawtucket before he was drafted into the Ambulance Company, April 16, 1917. The receipt of a telegram from Washington stating that injuries were serious a few hours after the "Am doing well" cable was received is believed by Samuel Fryer, the father, to mean that his son cabled after the injury sustained in action April 21. "I believe my son's cable left later than the department telegram. We are anxiously awaiting more news from France," he said.

BORGLUM HOT... TO FORCE AIR INQUIRY

His Attack on Baker Almost Certain That the Senate Will Probe Charges

By International News Service.

Washington, May 13. — Sharp injection of Secretary of War Newton D. Baker's personality into the aircraft muddle by Gutzon Borglum, in his latest open letter to President Wilson, has added interest to the inquiries now in progress here. It also has made it certain that the most complete investigation will be made by the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

The bitter language used by Borglum in his charge that the War Department was the chief party to a "frame up," designed to discredit him and thus block an investigation of the failure of the aircraft program, was said by his friends here today to be only preliminary to charges to be presented to the Senate.

Borglum intends to reply, his confidants here said today, to every charge made against him by administration leaders and read into the records of the Senate by Senator Thomas last week. They say Borglum will present, through Senator Brandegee, tomorrow or Wednesday, a series of facts and figures which will make it mandatory for Secretary Baker and his subordinates to explain.

BRANDEGEE NON-COMMITTAL.

The Connecticut Senator, selected, according to Borglum, to present his (Borglum's) side of the case to the people, has declined to indicate whether he will do this, or when. It is believed, however, that he will carry out the wishes of the noted sculptor as soon as possible.

It was considered significant today that Senator Hitchcock, after considering a great mass of additional data furnished by Borglum, should took the position that at least a part of the facts submitted must be investigated by the Senate.

Previously Hitchcock had said that the Borglum information was of little material value, as it was neither conclusive or susceptible of proof. Now it is believed that Borglum has produced evidence which will support at least a part of his charges.

ADMINISTRATION "STANDS PAT."

Administration leaders today stood squarely on the charges made against Borglum. They insisted that as they were in the nature of documentary proof, all properly substantiated, they showed that his motives must be discredited. It also was said today that the administration had other essential facts which would later on be made public.

The allegation that pro-Germans are interested in forcing the aircraft investigation continues to be heard in influential quarters. Up to the present time, however, no substantial proof has been offered anywhere that this is so.

Certain officials of the Department of Justice have quietly intimated that the government is in possession of certain facts showing that much of the agitation against the Aircraft Board was directly traceable to pro-German sources and that at the proper time this will be proved.

Must Get an Engine First to Make Planes Go, Says Borglum

By International News Service.

Stamford, Ct., May 13.—At his home here today Gutzon Borglum said:

"The big mistake the aircraft board has made is in trying to build an engine and a machine at once. They must get their engine first and build their planes around it. The Liberty motor is an incomplete experiment. I regard the Bristol fighting plane as a waste, but a necessary one."

Mr. Borglum reiterated his denial of charges made against him, and said Benjamin Harris, vice-chairman of his chairman's representative in the proposed aeroplane company.

DROP MINE-THROWERS ON AMERICAN LINES

By BERT FORD,

Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

With the American Army in France, May 13.—The Germans dropped seventy-five minenwerfer (mine throwers) into our lines on the French front in Picardy, in addition to a hail of shrapnel and sneezing gas shells.

The enemy's artillery activity was plainly in retaliation for our previous vigorous bombardment.

There were also occasional bursts from the enemy machine guns. American observers report that the Germans are building support lines disconnected from the dire trenches, from four to five hundred feet deep. The lines are provided with triple strings of barbed wire.

On the Cantigny road there has been desultory rifle fire. A German patrol of unknown size attempted a raid on one of our listening posts. It was driven off without loss to either side.

Tons of letters were written yesterday—Mothers' Day—by American soldiers in France to their mothers.

WOMEN'S FEDERATION LEADER SEEKS DIVORCE

New York, May 13.—William Grant Brown, wealthy lawyer and reformer, admitted today that his wife had gone to Reno, Nev., to seek a divorce. Mrs. Brown is president of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs and New York State chairman of the Women's Committee on National Defence. She has figured prominently for years in local civic reforms and woman suffrage activities. "I have heard her charges against me is incompatibility," he said.

Lieutenant Merrihew of Newton Victim of Peculiar Gas Attack

Though reported as slightly wounded in the casualty lists, Lieutenant Edward K. Merrihew, a member of the 151st Field Artillery, was "gassed" in a peculiar manner, according to his mother, Mrs. Edward T. Merrihew of Newton.

His own explanation of the injury, she states, is contained in a letter which she has just received from him, in which he writes that he lent his coat to an officer who passed through the gas attack. The coat was impregnated with poison, and when it was returned to its owner he was affected by it.

Merrihew is a well known former athlete of Harvard College and Newton High School. He was graduated from Harvard in 1910, and attended the first Plattsburg camp.

Dorchester Youth Reported Missing Saw Service With Cavalry on Mexican Border

Acting-Sergeant Sewall W. Rich, reported as missing in France, is the son of Thomas A. Rich of No. 19 Radford lane in the Ashmont section of Dorchester. He is twenty-two years old, enlisted two years ago, and saw service at the Mexican Border as a member of Troop D, Cavalry. He was also a member of the Roxbury Horse Guards.

He was connected with the 102nd Machine Gun Battalion as a corporal but was acting, for the past month, as a sergeant in his battalion. He attended the Dorchester High School and was a graduate of the Wentworth Institute. Prior to enlisting he was in the automobile business.

Seven Missing Members of Troop D, 102d Machine, May Be Among Captives

The fact that today's casualty list contains as missing the names of seven members of Troop D, 102d Machine Gun Battalion (formerly the 1st Squadron, Massachusetts Cavalry), leads to the belief that it was this troop that was referred to in a German dispatch of recent date which stated that in a raid the Huns had captured a number of American troopers.

Those in this troop on today's list as missing are: Sergeant Frank L. Smith, No. 21 South avenue, Revere; Corporal Melvin H. Carlson of No. 55 Paul Gore street, Jamaica Plain; Corporal Frank J. Damon of No. 43 St. Stephens street, Back Bay; Private Oliver T. Elliot of No. 17 Davis street, South End; Private Frank Gillespie of No. 653 Columbia road, Dorchester; Private Lloyd W. Litchfield of No. 5 Coulton park, Needham, and Private William L. Quinn of No. 47 Hillside avenue, Swampscott.

Private Frank Daley of Company C, 101st Infantry, who was at No. 66 Garfield avenue, Hyde Park, is also reported as missing.

The 1st Squadron of Cavalry was the only cavalry in the Commonwealth. Soon after war was declared it was changed into the 102d Machine Gun Battalion.

Hyde Park Boy, Among the Missing, Student at Boston College

Frank H. Daly, reported by General Pershing as missing since April 21, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Daly of No. 66 Garfield avenue, Hyde Park. He is eighteen years old, and was a student in the Hyde Park schools before attending Boston College.

He joined Company C of the Ninth Regiment, now merged in the 101st, when the company was stationed at Readville last June.

South End Soldier Missing; Chelsea Boy Hurt; Another Slain

Gunner Oliver T. Elliot, missing in action with thirty members of his company, the 102d Machine Gun Battalion, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver C. Elliot of No. 17 Davis street, South End. His father is the superintendent of the Boston Industrial Home at the corner of Davis street and Harrison avenue.

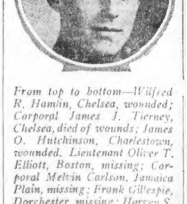
Gunner Elliot, who is twenty-two years old, was a member of the Roxbury Horse Guards, Troop D, and enlisted about a year ago, following the draft of June 5. He went across with the 101st Regiment in September. A letter dated April 14 received by his parents is the last word received in Boston concerning him.

The telegram containing notice of his being "missing in action" states that his absence was first noted on April 20, following the battle of Seicheprey. His father is secretary of the local exemption board of Ward 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlan Hanlin of No. 21 Carter street, Chelsea, received word today that their son, Private Wilfred R. Hanlin, of Company B, of the 102d Machine Gun Battalion, has been slightly wounded. He is twenty-two years of age and a graduate of Carter grammar school. He is well known in Chelsea, where he had lived for many years.

Corporal James J. Tierney, Jr., of Company C of the 101st United States Infantry, who died of wounds in France, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Tierney of No. 149 Hawthorne street, Chelsea. He was eighteen years of age and was born in Charlestown. He was a graduate of the Charlestown schools and was a former member of the Old Fighting Sixth. Besides his parents, he leaves two sisters, Grace and Henrietta Tierney.

NEW ENGLAND soldiers whose names appear in the latest lists of casualties in France.



From top to bottom—Wilfred R. Hamlin, Chelsea, wounded; Corporal James J. Tierney, Chelsea, died of wounds; James O. Hutchinson, Charlestown, wounded. Lieutenant Oliver T. Elliott, Boston, missing; Corporal Melvin Carlson, Jamaica Plain, missing; Frank Gillespie, Dorchester, missing; Harvey S. Fryer, Providence, wounded.

Corporal F. J. Damon, Reported Missing, Was a Bond Salesman

Corporal Franklin J. Damon, reported as missing in action in today's casualty list, formerly roomed at No. 43 St. Stephen street, Back Bay. His mother is head of a girls' school at Willimantic, Ct. He is twenty-one years old and a member of 5 Troop 102d Machine Gun Battalion. He went to the Mexican border with the First Squadron of Cavalry.

Previous to going to France he was a bond salesman here. The home of the family was Cohasset.

JAMAICA PLAIN MEN HEROES OF BATTLE

Corporal Melvin R. Carlson is the son of Mrs. Martin Carlson of No. 55 Paul Gore street, Jamaica Plain. He was born at Milton, N. D., twenty-two years ago. Carlson came to this city with his parents about twenty years ago and was educated in the public schools. He enlisted in Troop D.

Private John W. Murphy, Jr., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murphy of No. 6 Alden place, Jamaica Plain. He was born in Roxbury and attended the Sherwin Grammar School of that district. He enlisted in Company C of the old Ninth Massachusetts more than a year ago, which later became a part of the 101st Regiment.

Private Hutchinson Was Active in School Athletics in Everett

Private James O. Hutchinson, reported as slightly wounded in action, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hutchinson of No. 51 Soley street, Charlestown. He is twenty-four years old.

Hutchinson is an Everett boy, having but recently moved to Charlestown. He attended the Everett schools and was an excellent athlete. Hutchinson enlisted in Company M of the Eighth, the old Everett regiment, just before the Mexican trouble, and went to the border as a cook.

Since his arrival in France he had been transferred to the Motorcycle Section, 1024 U. S. Infantry, Headquarters Company.

Clinton Hyam of Marblehead, reported wounded, is the son of Philip H. Hyam of No. 61 Gregory street, Marblehead, but has not lived in that town for about six years. He was a member of Company I of the 101st Regiment.

Sergeant Frank L. Smith of Revere Wrote Parents Recently of Having a Rest

Sergeant Frank L. Smith of Company B, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, reported missing in action, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Smith of No. 21 South avenue, Revere.

Sergeant Smith enlisted in Troop D, Cavalry, at Allston, at the outbreak of the war. He camped at Camp Darling, Framingham, until after Labor Day, when the 102d was ordered to France.

In his last letter home young Smith told his mother that he was coming out of the trenches for a rest period. He is twenty-four and had served three years in the State Militia in Company I of Lynn. He enlisted at the time of the Mexican trouble and went to the border with the cavalry.

Harold W. Tucker, Held by Germans, Is Well Known in Providence

Providence, R. I., May 13.—A cablegram received here tells of the capture by the Germans of Harold W. Tucker, aged 23, of Battery C, 103d Artillery. The cablegram was received by a friend of the Tucker family from an officer abroad, and it is said that this officer got his information from a Red Cross nurse.

Tucker is well known here. He graduated from Brown College in 1915, and for some time was a member of Battery A. He received an honorable discharge when he went to Minneapolis to engage in business. He returned here to enlist at the outbreak of the war.

Private James I. Goodwin of Everett Is Reported Missing Since April 20

Private James Isaac Goodwin, 20, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Goodwin of No. 101 Vine street, Everett, is reported missing since the action of April 20. He was a graduate of the Horace Mann School and of the evening high school in Everett. Before enlisting in the Roxbury Horse Guards (Troop B, State Cavalry), last year, he was engaged in the wall paper business. The organization with which he enlisted was later transferred into the 102d Machine Gun Battalion, and he was a member of Company D.

Missing Swampscott Soldier Is a Son of Former Representative

William L. Quinn, reported missing in action since April 30, is the son of former Representative Martin L. Quinn of No. 47 Hillside avenue, Swampscott. He was born in Lynn, October 23, 1894, and was educated in the Swampscott public schools. He later became a special police officer in that town, and at the time of the Mexican trouble was a member of Troop D, First Massachusetts Cavalry.

Quinn went to the Mexican border with this outfit, and with them was mustered into the service as Company B, 102nd Machine Gun Battalion. He has a father and three sisters in Swampscott.

The Right Laxative For The Little Ones---

The natural condition of a child is to be happy and carefree. When the girl mopes and is indifferent to school and study, or the boy is sullen and refuses to go out and play, the child needs a laxative to empty the bowels and stir up the liver.

But something should be given that will produce the result in as simple and natural a way as possible. Harsh cathartics and physics are neither necessary nor desirable.

Many mothers have found that the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin produces a free movement of the bowels without griping. A very little is required, and it is pleasant to take. A few hours after its use the child will be its happy self again.

It is an excellent remedy for the mother herself, and for the other members of the family, in obstinate or occasional constipation, for the relief of headaches, as an aid in colds and fevers, minor skin eruptions and all disorders where the basis of the trouble is constipation.

The druggist will refund the money you pay for Syrup Pepsin if it fails to do as promised.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPSIN
The Perfect Laxative

NO INCREASE

In spite of enormous increased laboratory costs due to the War the manufacturers of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sacrificing their profits and absorbing the war taxes so that this family laxative may remain at the pre-war price of 50c and $1 a large bottle. So sold by druggists for 36 years.

FREE SAMPLES

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in America. If you have never used it and would like to sample it before buying, send your address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 464 Washington Sq., Monticello, Ill. If you have babies in the family send for a copy of "The Care of the Baby."

WORK OF AMERICAN SHARPSHOOTERS ONE OF WAR'S BIG FEATU

Crack Shots of United States Troops Play Havoc With Hun Marksmen—Clean Out Enemy Advanced Posts

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army in France, May 12.—The skill of the American sharpshooters is one of the features of the war. Some of the exploits read like fiction. They reflect the Yankee enterprise, ingenuity and nerve," said an American officer today.

"Some of the stunts pulled off by our snipers would make the rifle experts at home swell with pride, and the Germans green with envy. I have seen them for myself.

"For instance, a German sniper stationed near Three Elms had been giving us hell for some time in a certain sector where, one morning, I was inspecting the line trenches. 'Whiz' the bullets sang past my nose—and I've got some beak for a target. That damned Fritz had me hop waist deep into the mud and wallow through a communication trench.

CALLS FOR VOLUNTEERS.

"That cussed bird,' yelled the captain, 'that yellow headed bushwhacker's got us buffaloed about our own trenches. I want to scalp that bird.' Whereupon he called for volunteers and picked four crack shots.

"Well, I played 'em myself that night. An eagle-eyed sergeant copped Fritzie. Another German succeeded him to the ambush. Our boys got him, too.

"At dawn of another day we had to clean out a nest of enemy snipers in a different zone. A youngster from Oregon and another from Montana jumped to the job. They smeared themselves with mud so they resembled crocodiles. They had their rifles hitched to their backs, the barrel-tip touching their helmets. Then they wriggled over No Man's Man in broad daylight. They squeezed their way, an inch at a time, through the freshly-ploughed furrows. It was a dangerous job and required much patience and nerve. The men were forced to wriggle on like snakes through a swamp, half crawling, half swimming, to get to their destination.

LAY FOR HOURS IN FURROW.

"They lay in No Man's Land, screened by their mud coverings, waiting for hours in a shallow furrow. The fellow to the right, in the deeper hole, unfastened his rifle; it seemed to take him half an hour. Several of us officers were watching the performance through field glasses.

"Suddenly we saw a small puff of smoke. Then the same chap rushed over, got his companion's rifle and fired again. The Germans, not dreaming that snipers would take up such a precarious post, fired a machine gun at our first line. The two American lads lay in the mud for five hours and cleaned out the enemy sniping nest. They played hell with the Germans while the latter were bringing in food from a German outpost.

"Our two fellows returned with their whole hides; hungry and gleeful."

Air in France Has a Desolate Feeling, Writes Fitchburg Boy

Fitchburg, May 13.—"The very air has a desolate feeling all over France. The people back home have no idea what war rally means. It is very touching to pass through towns here and see hundreds of permanently disabled French soldiers and all the women mourning for lost relatives. Verily Sherman was too much of a gentleman to give war any harder name than Hell!"

Thus writes Edward J. Kenney of Company M, 16th railway engineers, to his sister, Mrs. Minott R. Stewart of this city.

"I have been traveling all the time since I left Camp Devens," he adds. "And have seen quite a lot of France. We had a good voyage across with just enough excitement to break the monotony.

"The country is very beautiful, but 400 years behind America in progressiveness. It has rained every day since we arrived and the pleasant sound of pulling one foot after the other out of the sticky mud is the sweet music that greets us day and night.

"My greatest ambition in the war has been realized. That is all I am allowed to say, but perhaps you can guess what I mean.

"If I am fortunate enough to return home safely I will keep you up nights telling you about what we have heard and seen. I have not received any letters since I have been over and I feel kind of lost when the mail is given out."

'BLUE DEVILS' OF FRANCE ENJOY DANCE AT CAMP UPTON

When those in authority at Camp Upton knew positively that the famous "Blue Devils" were to pay them a visit and observe American training methods, a call was issued for a special vaudeville show to entertain them in the Liberty Theatre at the cantonment. Among the entertainers were Jonia and her troupe of five Hawaiian dancers. This picture was made while the dancing was in progress, and shows the ukulele players stringing for the dancer, who may be seen in the original Hawaiian costume, including bare legs. The men were most pleased with this number of the long bill.

Bangor Soldier Tells of Hiking Through 25 Towns While Fighting in France

Bangor, Me., May 13.—Sergeant William Smith of Company B, of Bangor, writes the following graphic letter to his friends here:

"Any Place in France, April 18, 1918.

"It was a year ago tomorrow (Patriots' Day) that I boarded the 7:30 car for the last time for South Brewer and the Eastern Mill. About 8 I told Jim Reilly that I thought I would enlist. Who would ever think I would be away so long and without a collar and tie outfit.

"As I have written to some of you off and on, it is needless for me to repeat all of the experiences I have been through. But I'll say for the benefit of the others, that I've been under gas, shell, machine gun, rifle, automatic rifle, pistol and all other kinds of fire, I think. Also barrages and the like. I have seen air and earth flights. Not all kinds, but some of them. Have seen trenches, barbed wire entanglements, dugouts, shell holes, etc., galore.

BUSY ALL THE TIME.

"Since leaving the mill I have been corporal and company clerk, and lately have been appointed supply sergeant. And when we move I am kept some busy. And as we are moving all the time, I'm busy about all the time. Since we left our camp about February 6, we have stopped from one to ten nights in twenty-five different places. Therefore, you'll understand men when I start my letter 'Any Place in France.'

"Since leaving the good old U. S. A. I have traveled in trains, trucks, ships, box and flat cars, teams, and last but not least, and mostly, on foot. Have seen some of New York, Halifax, Liverpool, London, Southampton, Havre, Paris, Brest and many other large French cities and towns. Have slept in ships, trains, tents, mud, water, etc., billets, cantonments, replacement camps, box and flat cars, barracks and many other places. Such is life!

GRAVES ALONG THE LINE.

"By the way, while hiking one day, after leaving the trenches, I met our friend Jack LaCrosse. So you see the world isn't so large after all. And I have also met other fellows whom I know.

"Wish I could tell you of the sights I've seen, but the censor won't allow me to do it, still you read in the papers 'over there' more than we are allowed to tell in our letters.

"We have been in this place two days and tomorrow we leave for the second line, and by the looks of the graves, etc., there is something doing on this line.

"Please drop me some news, for a soldier's best friends are letters he writes and receives. Regards to all, both old and new, from

"WILLIAM SMITH.

"Supply Sergeant, Co. G, 103d U. S. Infantry."

Frenchmen Slow and Methodical, But They Accomplish Their End

Fitchburg, May 12.—The slow, methodical French people accomplish more by their machine-like system than do Americans rushing helter-skelter, in the opinion of Frank L. Buckley of this city, a first-class private in Company E, 401st telegraph battalion of the army, now in France. In a letter to his mother he says:

"This is certainly an interesting country to travel through. Everything seems to move like a clock. There is no hectic 'celter rushing, this way and that, as if one's life depended upon it and such as marks our people at home. Everybody here takes time.

WORK AT EVEN GAIT.

"Back of our camp there is a large garden. A fellow has been plowing there every day from dawn till dark at the same even gait. I was watching him the other day and I thought it sure would be funny to put him alongside of two or three American laborers and note the difference in their work. I think the Frenchman accomplishes as much in the end.

"Then again, while en route here, we passed through a number of cities and stopped for a couple of hours at one of the largest. The city certainly had a beautiful railroad station and a real large one but there was no running here and there, rushing for trains and things of that sort. The only ones that were even hurrying were some American lieutenants who were evidently rushing for a train.

"The weather here just now is pretty chilly. It makes one think of the old New England weather. The first week of our stay here the weather was wonderful; nice sunny days with very comfortable nights. Now it has suddenly changed, like one of those sudden changes in Massachusetts, and the days are very windy and the nights awfully cold.

"Everybody's garden here is planted and I guess the good weather is coming. I am feeling fine, very happy and contented.

LOOKS LIKE MASQUERADE.

"This is an interesting camp, inasmuch as I've seen more airplanes in the air at one time than I've seen in my whole life before. I also saw my first dirigible airship about a week ago.

"I have also seen nearly every kind of a soldier there is. The centre of a railroad terminal looks like a masquerade ball with all the different colored uniforms. I have also seen a lot of German prisoners working around at the different places.

"We have no electric lights here and our company sleeps in one large barrack of only one room, for which is furnished one kerosene lantern and a dozen candles.

"We are kept very busy during the day so a fellow don't feel much like writing when he does get in, especially under the above conditions. We are restricted to three letter a week. Each soldier can send out three but there is no limit to the number he may receive. The outgoing mail is censored but the incoming mail is not.

"Eggs are 70 cents a dozen here. The French peasant never saw so much money as they have lately."

Yankees Feel Badly Over Fighting German Boys 15 Years Old

Fitchburg, May 13.—American soldiers feel badly when they realize that they are frequently fighting German boys who, perhaps, do not know why they are in the war, writes Harry J. Tapply to his mother, Mrs. Charles Tapply, Pearl street. He says:

"It was my luck today to see a few Boche prisoners. They were just brought in from the Yankee sector. One of these was a mere youth with blue eyes and light hair. He certainly was a nice, clean looking little chap. A short time afterward an officer, who had talked with this young fellow, told me that the boy admitted that he was but fifteen years old. He said that he had been told to say that he was twenty-one.

"This is only one case. There are hundreds of others in the same way. It made many of our boys feel badly to think that they were fighting such innocent little fellows, who perhaps do not know what they are fighting for. It all goes to show that Germany is short of man power and manhood.

"Prisoners tell us that Germany is putting all her young men against are too slow for the Americans. the Yankees because their older men "A couple of Boche planes were brought down in six minutes here yesterday by two Americans.

"The British are holding their in good shape, although they have them outnumbered twenty to one. Still the Huns can never break through—you can rest assured of that."

Bay State Telephone Girls Experience an Air Raid in Paris

Fitchburg, May 13.—One of the Bay State telephone units which went to France a few weeks ago was greeted by a German air raid upon its arrival in Paris, according to Miss Marie L. Ford of the Fitchburg exchange, who wrote to Miss Katherine Hatchford, chief operator here, as follows:

"Here I am in France, happy and contented, I am in the most beautiful city in the world. The scenery and statues are wonderful.

"We certainly got a royal welcome the night we arrived in Paris. We had an air raid at 1.30 a. m. The Germans are advancing rapidly with air raids two and three times a week. Friday, April 12, a bomb struck a maternity hospital, killing young babies and mothers. The previous week to a day they bombarded a Catholic church. The roof fell and 150 women and girls were killed.

"You have heard that it rains here nearly all the time. It is a Godsend, for every pleasant day the Hun airmen get St. Vitus dance. The people dread moonlight nights.

"If I had a near friend here with me I would live here always. New York cannot be compared to this city. Talk about high life! Oh, Girls! You may have heard about the streets of Cairo! Well this is IT.

"Styles and jewelry are gorgeous. Clothes are very reasonable. Satin is the material most worn. I have not seen an American girl that could compete with the beauties of France. I don't wonder that kings and princes would rather go in exile than give up their favorites.

"How are the girls? I have not forgotten any of them, although working, sight-seeing, recreation of all descriptions and dodging cannon balls. I still think of you all. But girls, I would not change places with any of you! I was in England three days and visited the telephone exchange at Southampton.

"It has the funniest board. Toll is handled with only one cord. A cord and key corresponds with every light, so girls answer the lights on their positions only."

Chesterfield Sofa $65, Chair $35

How often it is said, "no home is complete without a really comfortable sofa—the gathering place for the family."

Probably no store in the world shows a greater variety of luxurious, upholstered sofas and chairs.

Difficult, indeed, then to single out one chair and sofa to represent this great collection. Better far to see for one's self—to sink into the inviting chairs, and learn how restful a sofa may be.

The large Chesterfield Sofa, illustrated, upholstered in tapestry, $65.

The Easy Chair, a modification of the old-fashioned wing chair, in tapestry, $35.

And like values may be had for every room in the home, as—a Colonial Bedroom Suite for $100; Mahogany Dining Table and Chairs, $70.

Summer Rugs, 9x12 feet, $11.25 upward.

Cretonnes, 50c a yard; Scrim and Voile Curtains, $3.50 a pair.

...AL READY ...E 'BROKEN' SOLDIERS

The trustees of the Norfolk State Hospital have urged Governor McCall to place that institution at the disposal of the national government for the care of soldiers who suffer shell shock or whose nerves are shattered by their experience in the first line trenches of Flanders and France.

Although the Norfolk county institution is for the care of inebriety, the trustees say they have found that the treatment is the same as that adopted by the English to restore the men who have suffered nervous breakdown from the experience in trench warfare.

At their request the hospital has been placed on the reserve list.

They have found, they say in their annual report, that they will be enabled to take on the new work because the hospital by no means is taxed to its capacity. On this point they say:

"A striking feature of the year's work has been a discovery, which was made at Norfolk in common with other institutions for the care of inebriates, that excessive drinking diminishes directly with opportunity for continuous work. When men are out of work or discouraged or poor, a certain proportion turn to excessive drinking. With such a demand for labor at high wages as at present, the number of men who drink to excess is proportionately very much smaller.

"This fact, combined with the fact that during this time of scarcity of labor employers will keep at work men who drink to such extent that the employer would attempt to replace them in ordinary times with men who are habitually sober, has caused the number of patients at the hospital to decrease materially. We are satisfied, however, that the present condition is but temporary and that the hospital will be occupied to its full capacity when business and the relation to the supply and demand of labor again become normal."

The trustees continue:

"The hospital has, during its decade of special experience, come to have a quite unique acquaintance with those nervous disorders which in so many cases underlie the addiction to alcohol. It is interesting to note that the treatment given at Norfolk to patients whose nerves were shattered by the excessive use of alcohol was practically identical with that treatment which has been found most successful in the English hospitals for nervous men who had suffered nervous breakdown from their experience in the trenches."

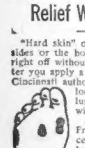
PEEL OFF CALLUSES

Here's Magic! Instant Relief Without Pain



"Hard skin" or callus spots on the sides or the bottom of the feet peel right off without pain or soreness, after you apply a little Freezone, says a Cincinnati authority. This ether drug loosens the dead callused skin so it peels off with the fingers.

A quarter ounce of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug pharmacy, but is sufficient to remove every corn or callus from one's feet. This is the only way to free the feet from corns and calluses without soreness, danger or infection.

After the corn or callus is lifted away the skin beneath is pink and healthy, and not sore, tender or even irritated.

Equal Suffrage Association Directs Red Cross Benefit in Copley-Plaza Tonight

Mrs. Edgar C. Rust and children, of Brookline, a member of the executive committee of the "Home Service for American Soldiers Abroad," which her mother, Mrs. Alice S. Weeks, has founded in Paris.

WANTS TO CALL 76TH DIVISION "TRIPLE D"

By KATHARINE ALDEN.

The Rev. Hugh Birckhead of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Baltimore, who has recently returned from Europe, where he has been observing the work of the Red Cross, will speak at the Copley-Plaza this evening at 8:15 o'clock. This meeting, which is under the auspices of the Boston Equal Suffrage Association, is held for the benefit of the Red Cross drive. The committee in charge of arrangements consists of Mrs. Evelyn P. Coe, chairman; Lucy Conant, vice-chairman; Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell, Miss Louise Stanwood, Mrs. Alfred Codman, Miss Katherine Briggs, Mrs. James Tucker and Miss Lillian Landy.

The following make up the long list of patrons: Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, Mrs. Godfrey Cabot, Mrs. T. Nuttdayed Cabot, Mrs. Alfred Codman, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Channing, Mrs. George P. Denny, Mrs. George S. Derby, Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, Mrs. Langdon Frothingham, Brigadier-General John A. Johnston, Mrs. George Nearing, Jr., Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram, Mrs. William Lothrop, Mrs. Francis P. Mascuin, Mrs. Samuel Mixter, Mrs. Francis J. Oakes, Jr., Mrs. Benjamin Pitman, Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, Mrs. Howard G. Shaw, 2d, Mrs. T. Mott Shaw, Mrs. Andrew J. Peters and Mrs. Fiske Warren. The Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester will preside.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Hunting of No. 47 West Cedar street announce the engagement of their daughter, Lillian Frances, to Fred Colburn Fernald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Fernald of Omaha, Neb. Miss Hunting is a graduate of Miss Wheelock's Training Training School, class of '15, and since graduating she has devoted her time to teaching and to social service work. Mr. Fernald is a graduate of Harvard, class of '15, and a member of this year's graduating class of the Harvard Law School. He is now stationed at Fort Logan, Col.

Mrs. Samuel McCall has accepted the honorary chairmanship of a committee composed of women who are to assist in a campaign to raise funds for the Children's Ambulance Service of Boston, of which Mrs. Gardner Hays Hammond is the founder. The amount required to carry on this splendid work will be not less than $10,000. Enrolled with Mrs. Hammond and Mrs. McCall are: Mrs. Andrew J. Peters, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mrs. Bryce Allan, Mrs. Robert Saltonstall, Mrs. Henry D. Burnham, Mrs. Frederick Winthrop, Mrs. A. Neal Rantoul, Mrs. James H. Noel, Mrs. Paul Thorndike, Mrs. Eugene N. Foss, Mrs. J. Murray Forbes, Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, Mrs. William C. Endicott, Jr., Mrs. Philip Sears, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Miss Abby Hunt and Mrs. Geoffrey Whitney.

"The Gallant 76th," "Teboys" and many other names are suggested as popular titles for the 76th Division, composed mainly of New England men, at Camp Devens. "The Gallant 76th" is the suggestion of Ednah A. Hopkins of No. 16 Wood street, Providence.

"Devens Democracy Demons" is the alliterative idea of Charles H. Goodwin, No. 114 Pearl avenue, Beachmont, who says "Triple D" would do for short.

"Teboys," or "T. S. Boys," is the suggestion of Fred Reidy of Gilbertville.

"Spver-Ready Division," suggested by Miss Gloria Lisle Glover of Valley Falls, R. I., and "Independence Division," because the 76th Division recalls the stirring days of the Revolution and the "Spirit of '76," according to the suggestion of P. J. Mahoney, a chief yeoman at the Naval Training Station, Newport, R. I., are new offerings.

"Cyclone Division" is a popular name, evidently, for several persons offer it as the proper title. Mrs. L. Shedd of Manchester, N. H., feels that the bravery of Hannah Dustin should be honored by naming the division for her, and that the boys would feel an inspiration in the name from her own heroic story.

Spencer R. Koch of No. 102 Seaver street, offers a large collection of names, including "New England Division." "America First," "Liberty Division," "Uncle Sam's Own," and "John Haggerty Division," the last for the Vera Cruz hero.

Another wholesale offering comes from L. A. C. Fisk, No. 5 Julian street, Pawtucket, including "Yanks in Khaki," "Crackerjack" and "Sharpshooters."

RESCUED AGED WOMEN FROM GERMANS

A vivid description of the retreat of the Allies and the inhabitants during the recent drive of the Germans on the Western front and of his optimism in believing it will soon be stopped, is given in a letter written by Jack Sanford, who as a member of the motor transport department of the Y. M. C. A. is the inspector of 250 automobiles and 50 motorcycles in France.

The letter is to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Sanford of No. 17 Jason street, Arlington, and reads as follows:

"It will not last long, and the drive will be stopped now soon, for as we drove back to Paris, Monday afternoon, we passed thousands of guns, supplies, cavalry and men, all French, all young, all fresh, singing the Marseillaise with music and flags, the wonderful French reserve who held Verdun, who held Soissons, who held the Chemin-des-Dames, and who are going to save Paris now, as they did in 1914. God bless the French! I love them.

EXPERIENCE OF LIFETIME.

"Well, I have had an experience of a lifetime and one I shall never forget since last writing to you. Saturday at about 4 p. m., Howard (he is the son of the Rev. James Barton, secretary of the Foreign Missionary Department of the Congregationalist Publishing Society) walked into the office dead tired and covered with dirt and exhaustion. I couldn't imagine what had happened, although I knew the drive had commenced. It seems he had driven down in his auto with his things, and papers and such few articles he could save, to ask for help. They were warned at 12 midnight that the Boches were coming and in twenty-four hours they had advanced fifteen miles.

"They had to and set fire to the barracks and burned all the supplies as he had planned to do, and sent the ramines out to help get the people out. They worked very fast and all the civilians were taken to Nesle. I went back with him Sunday morning in the machine. We went by the way of Roye and Creil to Montdidier and from there on to Roye. And going to Roye one goes past the old front with the devastated area. It was the first time I had seen it, and I never have I seen such misery and ruin.

"When we arrived at Montdidier it seemed that the Germans had taken Ham and crossed the Somme to Nesle, and that we were evacuating that town and all the surrounding country to Montdidier, where the refugees were being left for Paris and Amiens. We made ten trips to Roye, bringing old women and invalids and children back. We worked until 7:30 at night and only stopped because the bombardment was too great, and I shall never forgive myself for stopping then for there were still about twenty old people in the hospital and now it is held by the Germans.

"I never saw such pitiful sights on the road, the poor, poor peasants were driving along driving cows or goats with great wheelbarrow loads of clothes; old, old women who actually dropped by the road, women all bent and worn, eighty years, carrying great bundles and who had walked two days.

NEARLY BROKE THEIR HEARTS.

"When we took them in, we would have to have them lose their belongings or die. It nearly broke their hearts, poor things, for it was all they had left in the world. You see, there were no men folks to help them. We had two cars and some Smith College girls had a truck and that was all the aid there was for two days. The French couldn't help, and the British were retreating. Poor, poor men, they were tried to the limit and all grime and powder, smoke and wounds. Honestly, I never saw such chaos. The roads were packed, they were bringing back guns, supplies, wounded, everything they could. The men were even pulling the cannon by hand, thirty or forty on a rope.

"They had not vehicles enough to take care of all their wounded, and I saw men with a hand shot off walking to walk. Well, this tired, broken army went to Montdidier for the night, and the poor, bewildered and broken country folks went to Montdidier for refuge. We slept there in a convent yard on some sacks in the car. Women and children and soldiers slept in the streets, exhausted, and my God, what did those Boches do but raid Montdidier at night and drop over 200 bombs on those exhausted people.

"All the next day we worked, making trips to the trains with the refugees. Lots were killed, and I guess they were much better off. But I made lots of them happy, and I did my best to cheers them up. I gave them sweet chocolate and bread and jam and coffee. One old lady, ninety-nine years old and quite blind and deaf, and her sister, ninety-six. They had not a cent to their name, and only a little bundle of clothes. They had walked four miles when I picked them up on the road, as fast as they could, with falling shell and the roar of guns, and the Huns behind to whip them.

"Do you know, if I never do another kind act I shall feel I have done my share in the few hours work I did there. It was all so sad and pitiful, and the thanks and gratitude those dear people showed me I never said goodbye to one of them but what tears came to my eyes."

Captain Michael J. Moore has been made personnel officer in addition to his duties as officer in charge of the war insurance, Department of the Northeast. He reports he has written $3,000,000 worth of war insurance the past week, making a total of $140,000,000 since January.

5 HURT IN AUTO CRASHES; ONE MAN HELD

Five persons were injured, three seriously, in a series of automobile accidents in Boston, in one of which a limousine, said to be worth $10,000, was almost totally wrecked.

Miss Grace Chandler of No. 93 Forest Hills street, was the victim of the accident in which the high-priced car figured. The car was owned by Edward A. Clark of Pond street, and operated by Edward Shay of Manthorn road.

As the car was going along Washington street, near Glen road, Jamaica Plain, it met head-on with a small-er touring car, operated by Theodore Kospokotoulos of No. 12 Francis street, Pawtucket, R. I.

The cars crashed with such force that the Clark machine was thrown against a nearby telegraph pole. The pole was broken in two. Both autos were badly damaged.

BURIED IN WRECKAGE.

Miss Chandler was hurled from her seat in the rear of the Clark car and buried in the wreckage of the machine. She was assisted out by the driver and pedestrians and was taken to the office of Dr. Charles Malone, No. 3 Glen road, for treatment.

There it was found that she had escaped with multiple cuts about the face, hands and body. She was later taken home.

Kospokotoulos was placed under arrest charged with recklessly driving an automobile. He was later bailed out by friends.

Edward Wallace, employed by a local newspaper and living at No. 2 Locke place, was struck and knocked down on Washington street yesterday by a taxicab owned by Fred P. Brown of No. 122 Oxford street, Cambridge.

TWO BONES BROKEN.

At the Haymarket Relief Hospital it was found that two bones in the lower part of his left leg had been fractured.

The police say that the operator sped away without leaving his name.

Julian Freeman of No. 11 Dane place, Henry Fitzgerald of No. 51 Lambert avenue and George A. Haley of No. 5 Lambert avenue were all knocked down in front of No. 129 Dudley street when the steering gear of an automobile owned and operated by Edwin Hersey of No. 37 Munroe street, became unmanageable.

The Freeman girl, who is eight years old, received contusions and abrasions on both legs, and was taken home by her father. Fitzgerald also suffered from contusions and abrasions on both legs, and was taken home in a police ambulance.

Haley was taken to the City Hospital, suffering from more serious injuries.

SOX START OFF WEEK IN LEAD

Get First Place When Speaker Hands Game to Chicago—Bush Faces Browns

The Red Sox are back in first place. They took the lead when Cleveland lost a five-inning game to the White Sox, 3 to 0. The figures are:

	W.	L.	P.C.
RED SOX	13	10	.565
Cleveland	12	10	.545

By NICK FLATLEY.

"The best position in the race," declared one of the veteran Red Sox players this morning.

Exactly that idea pervades the whole team at present. The fact that they lost six games in a row hasn't worried them much.

They chased the jinx the day they got back home, and expect to have more than an even share of victories in the rest of the stand here.

"We have the best pitching staff in the league," declared the same authority, "and it's bound to help in the long run. The best of them lose once in a while, and we've been getting bumped lately. It always evens up, and after a while we'll be lucky once more.

"Four pitchers cannot last forever, but when they're going good a team can get out far enough to give them a rest.

"That was just why Manager Barrow was sticking them in every day, and but for bad luck on the road would have succeeded in getting us out in front almost as far as the Giants in the other race."

GERBER A SENSATION.

Gerber, at shortstop, has given as brilliant an exhibition of fielding in a couple of days as we have seen, and, if he keeps it up, will shortly be rated with Peck and Scott as one of the league's great shortstops. He is more or less null and void with the war club, but a guy can't have everything.

Austin, who is subbing for Maisel on third, is playing as well as ever, and lately has been showing the way to the rest of the outfit with the war club.

Gedeon is evidencing the early promise he showed on the Yanks, and, unless he stumps, will very shortly be rated with the best second sackers in the game. Incidentally, he has been hitting the ball hard here.

FIELDER JONES' "ACE."

Bisler is the same old Bisler in the field, but hasn't yet rated true to form with the bluegoon. Once he starts hitting them the Browns will undoubtedly be contenders.

Their lone weakness appears in the garden, from a Boston viewpoint. Smith appears uncertain in left, and Jamieson, while Hendryx and Dennnitt, who share right field, haven't displayed anything to rave about in this part of the world.

Tobin, out a centre, looks like a real ball player. He's one of the fastest birds streaking around the base paths that has been seen hereabouts in many a moon.

Bullet Joseph Bush was due to work this afternoon, with Sothoron or Lowdermilk against him.

Corbett's Corner

This is the sixth and final of a series of articles which Mr. Corbett has written giving the inside details of the fight between Jeffries-Jack Johnson fight at Carson City, Nev. The story comes from Jack Gleason, "The Man Behind," and forms one of the most romantic chapters in pugilism.

By JAMES J. CORBETT.

Johnson apparently was in fear of defeat even on the morning of the fight.

"The original articles of agreement called for the splitting of the purse 75-25," declared Gleason. "That meant $75,750 for the winner and $25,250 for the loser. But less than two hours before the fight took place, a messenger from Johnson's camp hurried to Jeffries and Berger with a request from Johnson that the purse be split 50-50. Jeffries refused, and held out for the 75-25 split.

"A wrangle ensued. Finally, when a deadlock seemed certain, and there was a possibility of a pitch as to the fight going on, Jeff compromised by agreeing that the purse of $101,000 should be split 60 per cent. for the winner and 40 per cent. for the loser."

HOW PURSE WAS SPLIT.

Johnson, the winner, received 40 per cent. of the purse, or $60,600, his bonus of $10,000, and $50,000 for his one-third interest in the moving pictures—a total of $120,600 for forty-five minutes work. Jeffries got $40,400 of the purse, the $10,000 bonus and $66,666 for his interest in the pictures—a total of $117,066.

Gleason and Rickard realized a profit of about $200,000 from their share of the pictures which, added to the gate receipts of $270,775, gave them a gross income of $470,775.

Out of this they paid $123,000 to the fighters and to Berger, lost $10,000 in the building of the stadium in San Francisco, and incurred expenses of about $16,500 otherwise.

So their gross outlay was about $150,000, which deducted from $470,775, left a net profit of $320,775—or about $160,000 clear profit for each.

Not so bad, eh—especially for Jack Gleason, because Gleason at the outset never had any thought of promoting the match. But Jeff—square and fair with his friends and ever grateful for favors—practically forced Gleason into it, feeling that Gleason would make a small fortune out of it and so get his reward for what he had done for Jeff.

CLEAN-UP FOR GLEASON.

Berger got his "bit," too, averaging around $250 a week during all the time he was with Jeffries on tour and getting $2,500 from the promoters in addition.

But it was Berger, staunch and loyal in his friendship for Gleason, who smoothed out many of the obstacles that were thrown in Gleason's way during the days before the promotion and of the deal was closed, so repaying the early kindness of Gleason.

But the man who profited beyond all others was Jim Jeffries, the man who tried to come back in a pugilistic way only to fail.

But even in failure there sometimes is success, as Jeffries' case will show. From that day in 1909 when the great Negro appeared in the Wigwam Theatre in San Francisco until that memorable afternoon in Reno, Jeffries added close to $250,000 to his bankroll.

A wonderful financial success was the Jeffries-Johnson match—the most remarkable in all sporting history. And Jack Gleason's persuasive powers was the primary cause of it all.

BABE RUTH is the talk of Greater Boston, all right, all right. H. Harrison Frazee thinks the $150,000 bid for the rookie Baltimorean was none too big. He likewise adds that he won't let any of his go at that price, or any other price.

FRAZEE FURTHER hints that if one T. Speaker was still hanging around he wouldn't take $100,000 for him.

• • •

JOHNNY TOBIN has come through his first Fielder Jones. The Kid has considerable of a nose in the old Federal league, but eye for a ball start when Jones brought him to St. Louis last year with Salt Lake City, where Jones learned the game under Charley Dryden and you can bet your sweet life the right finishing touch on this crack young brother. Judged on his two months record the Sox this trip, he's destined to rank with the star outfielders of the big show for many Summers to come. Tobin can hit, run and field; in fact, he can do everything.

• • •

JIMMY BURKE, once upon a time National league manager, and H. Jennings' right eye of late months, is here with the Browns. He's serving as F. Jones' first lieutenant, and doing good work on the coaching lines. Burke was never a Jimmy Collins or Billy Nash when operating on third in the old days, but he was always a fighter and heading, which is why he continues hanging around.

ONE FOR BOOK SENT ACROSS BY GOWDY

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Here is "one for the book" extracted from a letter from Hank Gowdy, who is in France and probably now on the front lines battling for the big world's championship.

"We had a nice young fellow in our company," writes Hank, "and I noticed that he was strong with the French people. They paid more attention to him than to anyone else, and wanted to kiss him every day or two. We didn't get wise for a long time, and then because one of the lieutenants happened to see the kid wearing a cross on his blouse.

"'What right have you to the croix de guerre?' demanded the lout.

"'That aint a croix de guerre, sir,' said the kid. 'That's my Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor badge.'"

Those who recall the days when Harry Harris, the slender, quiet handsome boy, who startled the pugilistic world in 1895 and for several years thereafter by his speed and punch that brought him the bantam championship when he whipped Pedlar Palmer, the Englishman, will not be surprised to learn that he has made a success of brokerage in New York and that last week he was made an authorized curb broker.

Harris was the handsomest boy I ever saw in a prize ring, so handsome that the other fighters called him "pretty."

He was a Chicago lad who went East almost unannounced and battled his way to the top, whipping Roden, fighting a draw with Jimmy Barry (after they had retired), beat Buddy Ryan and Monoy Mellody and then, as a lightweight, beat Harlem Tommy Murphy.

He retired from the ring almost as quietly as he entered it, started at the bottom, learning the brokerage business and now is one of the best liked fellows on Broad street, below Wall, where the Curb market rages each day.

TWO BUSY BOYS TOP BIFF BILL AT CHELSEA

Thomas and Brooks Underlined to Furnish Feature Number; Moore to Officiate

CARD AT DOUGLAS A. C.

Main Bout—Terry Brooks of West End vs. Charley (Kid) Thomas of Philadelphia; twelve rounds.

Semi-Final—Sam Bell of South End vs. Charley (Chick) Miller of South End; eight rounds.

Second Preliminary—Bobby Dyson of New Bedford vs. Jack Shea of Newburyport; eight rounds.

Curtain-Raiser — Billy Burke of Peabody vs. Bowker Lowrey of Salem; eight rounds.

Referee—Jack Moore.

Starting Time—8 p. m.

By J. P. MURPHY.

Terrible Terry Brooks, so-called because of his ability to swing "that right," meets a man after his own heart tonight, when he tackles Charley (Kid) Thomas of Philadelphia in the feature skirmish of twelve rounds at the Douglas A. C., Chelsea.

Thomas is a rugged boy and noted for his ability to assimilate punishment.

In his only appearance here, just about three years ago, he fell victim to Charley White's famous kayo, but it was not until the referee called a halt to the proceedings that the Chicago cyclone was officially credited with a knockout.

In other words, Thomas was stopped standing up and might have gone on indefinitely had not the official saw fit to interfere.

Thomas is the third Philadelphia scrapper Brooks has met in the last few months. Just a few weeks back Terry stayed the distance with Lanky Tendler, and previous to that bested Eddie Wagner in six rounds. Both battles were fought in the Unconscious City.

Jack Moore of Chelsea will most likely do the officiating tonight. He has been in charge of the Pleiming, who has been let out by the club because of unsatisfactory work. Moore has performed to the entire satisfaction. He has already met Norfolk once, engaging him in a ten-round no-decision bout at Rochester, N. Y., last September.

Ashe's last foe was Clay Turner, Indian boxer, whom he held to a draw. Just previous to this bout he had defeated Jack Williams, mammoth Philadelphian.

FULTON TO CLAIM TITLE UNLESS JESS FIGHTS HIM

Portland, Ore., May 13.—Fred Fulton, who is here on his vaudeville tour, today declared if his match with Jess Willard is not staged by Colonel Miller he will claim the heavyweight championship of the world and collect the $10,000 in forfeit money put up by Willard on the July 4 match.

"Miller's action calling off the fight looks to me to be nothing but a run out on Willard's part," said Fulton. "I don't think Willard ever intended to fight me or ever will fight me hereafter."

Joe Jackson to Enter Uncle Sam's League Within Fortnight

Greenville, S. C., May 13.—Joe Jackson, left fielder of Chicago White Sox, who stood his physical examination for military service in Philadelphia Saturday, and was reported 100 per cent. sound, will be notified by the local exemption board to hold himself in readiness to report for military duty between May 26 and June 1.

The notification will be telegraphed to Jackson as soon as the local exemption board is officially notified of the result of his physical examination.

Dave Jackson, Joe's brother, who is also playing professional ball, appeared before the board here and requested to be placed in military service with his illustrious brother. His request will be granted.

TYLER IS DOOMED TO FACE HIS OLD MATES

Derry George Is Fred Mitchell's Slab Nominee Today—Rain Prevents Sunday Game

By BILL BAILEY.

Chicago, May 13.—The Boston Braves have Chicago fandom wondering.

Despite the loss of Grover Alexander, the local enthusiasts thought they possessed a pennant contender until the fellows from the East whipped their favorites Saturday. Now they are wondering.

The reason for their wonderment is this: The Braves, after being kicked and buffeted by everything in the East, won the opening game of the series here, defeating the club that is acknowledged to be the best in this section.

Now, did the Braves play ahead of their stride, or were they licked and kicked in the East because of the superior strength of the clubs of that territory?

Chicago fans don't know; they are keenly awaiting the remaining two contests of the series.

George Tyler was the pitcher named early today by Manager Mitchell, and the Braves were to look at the most determined hurling they have seen this year. Whether he is the most effective, remains to be seen.

Tyler, you Boston fans will recall, was one of you until the Winter's trading carnival sent him to Chicago. And he has been going great guns ever since.

Twice has Tyler started for the Cubs; twice has he won, and once was defeated because of bad pegging by his pals.

Tyler will place everything that he possesses on the ball this day, for there is no greater joy in a pitcher's life than defeating the gang that once cast him off. Art Nehf was carded to oppose him.

Charley Herzog, who missed Saturday's mailtuse owing to a stiff neck having him hors du combat, planned getting back into the fray today. Pat Hagan is toting around a badly bruised hand, while Tom Hughes and Art Wilson are nursing sore whips.

KILMER PAID $15,000 FOR WINNER OF DERBY

Exterminator, winner of Saturday's Kentucky Derby, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's starter when Sun Briar trained off in his trials, cost the Eastern turfman $15,000. The colt was bred by E. D. Knight at Nicholasville, Ky., and was broken and trained by J. C. Milam, who disposed of him during the Lexington meeting.

As first money in the Derby was $15,000, Mr. Kilmer's Sir Barton Farm Empress won himself out for Kilmer.

The Unruly Child

PERHAPS THE PARENTS ARE TO BLAME

Prof. McKeever Advises Them to Study Their Own Fitness to Train Boys and Girls

By William A. McKeever
(One of the nation's best-known sociological writers.)

PRACTICALLY every day letters are coming to me from troubled parents. "In deep despair," "About at my wit's end," "Simply incorrigible," "A terrible temper," "Naturally a hard case"—these are stock phrases taken from the class of letters here considered.

My first general reply to the anxious inquirers is that their letters nearly all reveal gross ignorance of the simplest fundamental problems of child training. Their relations to the child involved is usually those of inharmony, irritability, misunderstanding and others suited to intensify the trouble which already exists.

Some of these pleaders for help ask for an easy get-there-quick method for curing what amounts to a deep-seated difficulty. This short-cut rule simply cannot be furnished.

So again, I say, you troubled parents of the so-called very bad and incorrigible little boy or girl, the chief difficulty seems to rest with you rather than with the child. Your outline of the juvenile problem is the same old study of the centuries, of a normal child more or less mismanaged.

Why not submit yourself to a diagnosis?

Are you reasonably normal in health?

Are you reasonably poised nervously and not worn down from overwork?

Are you comparatively free from those poisons of the body—clogged liver, weak kidneys, high blood pressure—which affect the mind, giving undue worry and over emphasis of the "bad" in your child?

Do you understand the general principles of child study and child training such as any busy but interested parent can acquire through casual reading and study?

I find that a large percentage of the troubles of mothers in managing their children can be traced to some of the forms of ill health outlined above. The circumstances are often unfortunate and not easily improved. The first necessary step here is to strive hard for a restoration of the health, and thus at once make the training problems far easier.

If the health of the troubled mother is sound, then the method of dealing with the child must be radically revised. Begin at the bottom. Assume for the sake of the results that you know practically nothing worth while about your child; and then, at once begin a course of reading and study of juvenile character building. There are many texts in this field of study which will prove easy and interesting reading. If you take up a few of them as a side study they will gradually put you into a happy relation to the child which now gives you so much trouble.

Go to your city library and ask for a list of the best books on child study. Tell the librarian about your troubles, but ask for more than a brief treatment of the individual case. Go through the matter and all around it by reading through at least one of the most helpful books.

If you can find no better guidance, ask the librarian to help you make a selection of a suitable volume on the subject.

Presumably you are not only in deep despair about your trouble with the child, but the child himself is aware of your difficulty. Perhaps you even go so far as repeatedly to call his "bad" points to his mistrustful attention. All this aggravates the trouble seriously.

Again and finally, I urge, first square yourself with your own health. Then inform yourself as to the general nature and tendencies of child life—even if you may seem to have to drop the individual case for the time being. After that your troubles should all slowly melt away, while the natural joys of training a young life should enter in to take the place.

Puss in Boots Jr.

By David Cory

YOU remember in the last story when I left off I was very much afraid the wonderful cow would tip off the little milking stool and break one of her ivory horns. But she didn't, although she did something else all of a sudden, let me tell you.

You see, she no sooner swallowed the blade of grass that Puss gave her than she felt very queer, and pretty soon she began to look very queer. Her horns turned into long ears and her body became smaller and before long she turned into a little donkey. And when the man who had bought her came out to the barn, for he had seen Puss and the farmer enter the barn, he grew dreadfully angry.

"What have you done to my cow?" he demanded in an angry voice. "I didn't do anything," said the farmer, which was perfectly true. And the man didn't ask Puss, because he never thought a cat could change a cow into a donkey, and neither would I and neither would you.

"Why are you here?" asked the man, and the farmer replied, "I wanted to buy back my cow from you, but I don't want a donkey," and he turned to go.

"Neither do I," said the man, "I think the animal is bewitched. I'll have nothing to do with such a creature."

"I need a steed to ride upon," said little Puss Junior, speaking for the first time; "I'll buy the donkey."

"Well, you can have this cow-donkey for half what I paid for her," said the man in a disgusted voice. "I'll not keep such an animal in my barn."

So Puss took out his purse and paid his money, and then he jumped on the donkey's back and he and the farmer went away. And after they had gone for maybe a mile the farmer said: "Now, change the donkey into a cow."

"I will not," replied Puss. And then you should have seen how angry that farmer got. Why, he was twice as angry as he had been a short time before with his wife. And then, all of a sudden, he picked up a stick and hit the donkey a whack. Well, sir! That donkey just kicked up her heels and away she went, with Puss on her back, and by and by, after they had galloped for maybe ten or fifteen miles, Puss said: "Whoa, Jenny! Be quiet. This will never do."

And pretty soon the little donkey calmed down and before long she was walking along as quietly as you please.

"Would you like me to change you back into a cow?" asked Puss. "For if you do, I have a little magic leaf in my pocket which you can eat."

"I'd rather be a donkey," the little animal replied. "Let me carry you on your journey of adventure, for I would see strange sights and new faces, and a cow is a stay-at-home sort of a person and never has any fun." And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Are You Ashamed of Your Hands?

It is an old saying that a woman's hands tell her age and social standing better than her face. There is no excuse for any woman to have rough, red, coarse hands, no matter how much housework she may do. A specialist has perfected a preparation that keeps the hands wonderfully soft and youthful white. It is called La-may (French, Crème L'Amy). Two ounces is enough for weeks for only a few cents from any of the big stores. All you do is to apply it after you wash your hands or before you go outdoors. You will be delighted to see the quick improvement in your hands. It is also splendid for the complexion, for rough skin, wrinkles, crow's feet, enlarged pores. Thousands of women declare it may be the most wonderful beautifier cream they ever used. It is guaranteed not to grow hair. There is also a delightful La-may Face Powder that is guaranteed absolutely pure and that stays on better than any other face powder. Save this notice.—Advertisement.

Motherhood an Inspiration to a Career

Charming Billie Burke (Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld) Says Being a Parent Makes Her Work Finer and Better

(Photo by Sarony)

Bille Burke and little Patricia Florenz Ziegfeld, who is so sweet that her mother wishes she had a dozen more just like her.

By MARGERY REX

"I WISH I had a dozen more babies, that is how nice Patricia Florenz Ziegfeld is," was the recent comment of Miss Billie Burke (Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld) on the attractions of the heiress to the house of Ziegfeld.

Little Patricia was born in October, 1916, and has had so many flattering things said about her youthful charm and cleverness that if she did not inherit her mother's simplicity and charm as well as beauty, she would be a much-spoiled infant.

On Miss Burke's return to the stage after two years' absence she enthusiastically indorsed other famous mother artists when she said that with the birth of Patricia there had come a new ambition into her life, and she felt that her work would be finer and better because of the little golden-haired child that had come to her.

"These two years have made such changes in my life. Before, the stage was everything to me, and yet nothing, because there were so many things I did not understand. Since I've had my husband and my baby, it's all been so different. The stage has a more serious interest. Drama is more life-like. For practical reasons I want to work while I can, for I want to share with Mr. Ziegfeld the responsibility of Patricia's future."

When asked how she expected to manage all her many interests, husband, baby and career, Miss Burke replied: "Oh, I've learned such a lot lately and have such a wonderful incentive now that I feel that I can accomplish a great deal."

Miss Billie Burke's baby has the same resplendent red-gold hair and blue eyes that have made her mother one of the beauties of the stage.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Seventeen"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Please tell me what to do. I am seventeen and in love with a fine young man ten years my senior. He loves me dearly, and I don't think there is anything he wouldn't do for me. He has even gone so far as to give me a diamond ring. Now he is, I think, a little bit inclined to flirt. I have told him many times I am very jealous; and I think if I ever saw him flirting with my own eyes I would hate him. He admits he knows a few girls from his own town, but that is all.

Now, Miss Fairfax, please tell me, is my disposition wrong or what?

S.

AIS you engaged to this young man, ten years your senior, from whom you have accepted a diamond ring? Or is it one of those vague affairs that girls sometimes drift into, and then drift out of again. If you are actually engaged, with your parents' consent, then he ought to be sufficiently loyal to you not to cause you any anxiety by "flirting" with other girls. You say you are very jealous, and that if you caught him flirting you would "hate" him. Doesn't this prove to you, my dear girl, that you are rather young to accept the responsibilities of marriage? If you are genuinely engaged, with your parents' consent, I haven't a thing to say; but if it is one of those indeterminate arrangements, I really believe I'd put the whole thing out of my head for a year or two, at least. Seventeen is very young to make a lifetime decision. Just get a delightful book by Booth Tarkington called "Seventeen," and read it—perhaps it will make you see things more clearly.

The Four of Hearts

A SERIAL OF YOUTH AND LOVE

Milton's Father Imparts Some Astounding Information to Cynthia About His Son's Feelings

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LIV.

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

EDWARD VAN SAUN'S pale face lighted with pleasure as the nurse ushered Cynthia Long into his room, then went out, closing the door softly, leaving the pair alone.

The convalescent was propped up in bed, his gray hair and moustache shining like silver against the white pillows. Cynthia thought she had never seen him as handsome before. Again he reminded her of her own father.

"Dear Mr. Van Saun!" she exclaimed, kissing the hand he held out to her. "It is good to see you again."

"It is very gracious of you to come to me," he rejoined. "I hope my sudden illness did not interfere with any of your plans. I am more than glad for the sake of you young people that I shall soon be up and about again. It would have been distressing if I had been ill near the date of the wedding. Let me see—the great event is less than a month off now—isn't it?"

Cynthia drew a deep breath. "Yes," she answered, "it is."

Edward Van Saun glanced down at the solitaire diamond flashing on her finger. "I hope you are very happy, dear," he said simply.

"Thank you!" she murmured.

She could not tell this man that she was dissatisfied. "Gerald is very kind and good to me," she added.

"Dear," he said, "I have wanted to ask you about a matter that is very close to my heart. There is a question which you will forgive me for asking—because I love my boy better than my life. Does Dora love Milton?"

What could she say? "I—I—why, Mr. Van Saun," she began, "how should I"——

An Important Revelation

He stopped her with a gesture. "Wait, until I explain. I am asking this of you because I trust you absolutely. I wish I had a daughter like you. I know you will be honest with me. Since I have been ill I have had much time to think and many opportunities of watching my boy. He is not happy. Do not fancy for a moment that I imagine he does not love Dora. He asked her to marry him. There was no reason for this unless he cared for her. But I can see that something is weighing on his mind. I have wondered if he suspects that she does not care for him and that he should release her from her engagement."

He paused, but as Cynthia said nothing he went on. "I have urged him to spend his evenings with Dora, as he used to do—but he has said that she is busy with her wedding preparations. I know that those would not fill all her evenings. He tells me that he sees her almost every day on his way home. But if the girl loved him that would not satisfy her.

"Here—forgive me if I seem egotistical—but I think if she looked forward with joy to marrying my son she would be desirous to see his father once in a while. She like not been in to see me for a moment since my illness. Understand, I have not felt hurt on my own account. Why should I? But Milton must have noticed it.

"These are only straws that show which way the wind blows. I would think nothing of them if my boy were happy. But, my dear, he is not."

"I am sorry, dear Mr. Van Saun," she faltered. "I wish I could help in some way. But there seems to be nothing that I can do."

"I see, I see," he acknowledged. "You cannot speak frankly about your cousin without betraying any confidence that she may have reposed in you. Yet—it occurred to me that perhaps you might try to ascertain from Milton why he is so worried. For, if Dora does not love him he must not marry her."

A Stern Dictum.

The words were uttered sternly. "I consider a loveless marriage a sin," the speaker continued. "Not all the pretty names that people give it can alter that truth. My son shall not be guilty of making a pure young girl sin. And that is what she would do if she married him without loving him—just because he loves her or because the marriage seems the conventional and convenient thing.

"I used to hope for and anticipate this marriage. Now I see that I may have been party to a great wrong to my old neighbor's little daughter."

"I understand," the girl said in a low voice. "And now I must go and let you rest."

"I have ordered tea served for you down in the drawing-room," her host informed her. "Milton came home early this afternoon. I told him you had telephoned that you would call, and that although I wanted you to myself for a little while, he might see you later. You will find him and the tea waiting for you downstairs."

Keep Your Rugs Like New

YOU can easily regain the original beauty and coloring of your rugs by applying occasionally a soft lather of 20 Mule Team Borax Soap Chips. Let it remain for a few minutes, then remove with a stiff brush. Will not injure colors or fabric, as the Borax simply softens and loosens the dirt and the soap dissolves it away.

20 MULE TEAM BORAX SOAP CHIPS

will also make laundrywork easy if used in this way: Make a Soap Jelly by putting three tablespoonfuls of the chips into a quart of water and boil.

Add enough of this solution to the wash water to make a good suds and then soak or boil clothes as usual. Don't rub; it is unnecessary. An 8 oz. package of 20 Mule Team Borax Soap Chips equals 25c worth of ordinary laundry soap.

It's the Borax with the soap that does the work.

POOL MATCHES AND BOWLING AT THE PIER

Series of Tournaments Arranged and Medals Will Be Given to the Winners

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, May 13.—Pool and bowling will be at the front on board the ship during the next few weeks. A tournament begins tonight which will have all of the experts—and there are quite a number of them—among the contestants.

The games will be run off every afternoon and evening, and the scores posted each morning. At the completion of the contest medals will be presented to the winners.

The printing office and editorial sanctum of the ship's paper, the Pier-E-Scope, are to have new quarters. Lieutenant (J. G.) D. W. Nelson has this department in charge with L. D. Williams as chief printer.

The present office is located in the corner of a large room where a number of people are constantly passing. This makes more or less confusion for the typesetters and editors.

When it became known that Paymaster T. F. Hull was to transfer his department from the Navy Yard to the ship, and that the old insurance office was to be abandoned, Lieutenant Nelson set to work to have the printing outfit moved to the vacated room. Painters and varnishers are now at work and in a few days the ship will have one of the best small printing offices in this part of the world.

What this office can do in the way of fine printing was shown by the souvenir programs of the entertainment, Sunday, by the People's Choral Union at the Liberty Theatre. The work was done in colors and was finished in a way of which any set of craftsmen might be proud. On the cover of this program was reproduced a stand of the flags of the allies as they should be arranged according to a recent decision of the government. This order should be of general interest to many people off the ship.

The usual way of arranging the national emblem with other flags has been to put the Stars and Stripes in the middle with other flags on either side. Now the government specifies the extreme right, as one faces them, of any group of flags as the place of honor. The position next in order of precedence is at the extreme left, and the next is in the middle.

More than eighty men won promotion on the ship as the result of study and hard work put in last month, and it is predicted that a larger number will move up in rank during May. The men who have taken the examinations thus far have been very successful.

EDITORIAL

Visitors to Camp Devens, especially those who venture out to the outskirts of the cantonment on Sunday, should refrain from picking up unexploded cartridges and shells on the artillery and other ranges. This also applies to many of the "rookies" and other enlisted men, who are disregarding orders issued by Major-General Hodges. Some men say they were never told of any such orders, and if that is true the orders should be repeated before some curious and unsuspecting visitor or soldier is injured.

The responsibility of leaving the unexploded shells lying about the ranges rests upon the shoulders of somebody at the cantonment, and it is up to that person to see that they are collected by soldiers who know how to handle them. There have been one or two accidents due to this hazard.

ORIENT HEIGHTS CITIZENS UNFURL 200-STAR FLAG

A service flag representing 200 young men of the Orient Heights section of East Boston was unfurled in Breed square, Orient Heights, in the presence of 5,000 people. The flag was released by George Roach, representing Uncle Sam. A feature of the program was the parade through the principal streets of the district by the Everett City Band, school children of the Blackington School, Red Cross nurses from the Cheverus Chapter of East Boston and a large number of automobiles. The only float in the parade, representing the Allied Nations at war, on which was a number of prominent young men and women, was given a great reception along the route of march. The chief marshal was James "Parson" Burns.

YOURS FOR A PENNY

ENGINEERS ON FIRST LEG OF HIKE

Pitch First Camp Tonight in Townsend—Special Work for Wednesday

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, May 13.—Headed by Major J. Edward Cassidy, the 301st Engineer Regiment, with practically its entire equipment, moved out of the cantonment today on the first leg of the hike to Ashburnham, where the regiment is to go into camp. The outfit made an excellent appearance as it swung along the inner road of the cantonment, past several of the staff officers grouped in front of division headquarters, and out through the main gate.

The line of march led out through Ayer, Groton, Paper mill village, Townsend Harbor to Townsend, where the regiment was scheduled to camp over night and resume the march to Ashburnham tomorrow by way of West Townsend, Ashby, Ashburnham reservoir, to the camp site near Meeting House Hill in Ashburnham, offered to the regiment by a prominent New York man.

On Wednesday the officers and men will be put to work solving problems in minor tactics. The regiment will leave camp Thursday morning and march through Ashburnham, Blackburn Village and Fitchburg and camp over night at Massapong Pond, returning to the cantonment through Lunenburg and Shirley Village.

INFANTRY TO BE NEXT.

The 301st Engineers, which is made of largely of Rhode Island men, has the honor of being the first regiment to start the extended hikes at this cantonment. The infantry regiments are expected to follow suit as soon as the field training tests are completed. It was also said today that the artillery regiments may be sent out of the cantonment for a week's stay.

Each of the enlisted men of the engineers carried the regulation short service pack and one cooked meal. Squad bundles containing extra blankets, underwear and other articles of a similar nature were carried on escort wagons and the rolling kitchen moved with the outfit. The kitchen was assigned to different units of the organization for each of the five days and was also to be used to prepare hot coffee for the entire command at each noon meal.

According to the "orders" issued to the regiment, enemy forces were supposed to be concentrated on the general line of Pittsfield, North Adams and Bellows Falls, and raiding parties had appeared at Winchendon. The regiment was instructed to advance and take a position of observation at Ashburnham from which reconnaissance of enemy positions could be made.

The instructions also provided for the protection of both flanks of the main column by mounted detachments advancing on parallel roads. The men were to march fifty minutes and rest ten and the rate of marching was to be two and a half miles an hour.

BIG BATCH FOR TRAINING.

Nearly 1,000 men have been selected to attend the fourth officers' training camp which is scheduled to open Wednesday. Approximately 375 of the candidates will be college men sent here from more than twenty colleges, the most of which are in New England. Unlike the third officers' training camp, the enlisted men and the college men will be thrown together in the various companies, as it is believed that the blending of the two factions will have a beneficial effect.

The field training tests of the infantry regiment are expected to be brought to a close this week and the results and standings of the various organizations announced next week. The third battalions of the 301st and 302d Infantry Regiments were scheduled to be put through field maneuvers for the benefit of the examining board today.

NOW SERGEANT-MAJOR.

Corporal William H. Sherry of Fall River has been made a battalion sergeant-major in the "Old Colony" regiment commanded by Colonel Charles C. Smith.

A bandstand and a sunken garden are to be built on an island in Robbins Pond, and the plans are being drawn by Private John Weaver, a member of the 33rd engineer regiment who came here from Oklahoma and was a landscape architect before he joined the army.

George W. Wilson of Orient Heights, a retired actor who once trod the boards at the old Boston Museum, has turned his old costumes, wigs and other stage paraphernalia to the soldiers at the Enlisted Men's Club to be used by them in their entertainments.

It was estimated that more than 100,000 persons visited the camp on Sunday and the military police are said to have checked off more than 7000 autos. A large delegation came from Worcester in motor trucks and other vehicles and visited the new men from Worcester who are quarantined in the overflow barracks of the 302nd Infantry regiment.

Where Is the Service Flag With the Most Stars?

WHOSE SERVICE FLAG flies banner group of stars? The glorious Service Flags meet the eye on every side throughout Boston and New England.

The stars tell the number of soldiers who have gone to war from the home, store, college, factory or whatever place is flying the flag.

Some homes proudly display four or five stars on their Service Flags. Large corporations, like railroads and big manufacturing industries, fly Service Flags with hundreds of stars.

The Boston AMERICAN would like to hear about the Service Flags with the greatest number of stars.

For convenience the Service Flags may be divided into groups, as follows:

1. Family (individual homes).
2. Church (including Sunday schools).
3. Society and institutional (fraternal organizations, unions, colleges, schools, etc.).
4. Business (stores, corporations, manufacturing plants).

Please make your letters brief and specific. Address Banner Star Editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston.

GOOD FIGHTERS AMONG HUNS SCARCE

Lance Corporal Arthur H. Vail of A Company, 101st Ammunition Train, American Expeditionary Force, has written an interesting letter to his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Vail of No. 38 Walnut street, Arlington, in which he declares:

"The good fighting Huns are a thing of the past and their officers with them, I guess.

"The men who are fighting for them now are having hard work to hit barn doors. We are billeted out in old deserted houses in a town which the Huns held for a year or two. Of course, most of the buildings have a shell hole or two in them, but it is funny to look at a nearby church, which has a quiet, peaceful steeple. The "dogs," it seems, made enough attempts to wreck it, but they hit the surrounding buildings in their mad attempt and left but one visible shell hole in the steeple.

"A nearby barn lost its roof in the scramble and yet the steeple stands as erect as ever and its clock tolls off the hours as sweetly as if the war was in America instead of nearby.

"Boys from our train have been hauling ammunition up to the place where they are supposed to and the Germans never know anything about it. I tell you, dear folks, the ammunition train is all right and you don't need to worry in the least. I feel much safer here than I would on an elevated train and am more comfortable, too.

"Yesterday was a dandy, bright day and aeroplanes had a busy day. I spent quite a little time watching an aero battle. They were so high it was almost impossible to see them. They didn't seem to be any larger than a button and often they would chase each other out of sight. It was worth the trip over here to see that scrap. There were over a dozen machines in the turmoil and I guess they all got home safe.

"The Allies seem to have more languages talked among them than I'd guessed were in existence. Some of our trip was through former battlefields and we saw many crosses that represent the graves of men who had fallen there. There weren't enough of them left around though to scare anyone. When at home I had the impression that men fell in layers, but that is a foolish impression. We haven't seen enough yet to scare us."

Seven-Day Furlough After Six Months in Trenches Rests Nerves

Fitchburg, May 13.—After six months in the trenches, Company C of the First Engineers got a seven-day furlough, which relieved the tension on the nerves of the boys who were "up there," writes Ovila B. Thibault of this city to Arthur J. Isabelle, a sergeant in the Depot Brigade at Camp Devens. Private Thibault says:

"Gee, it is great to receive news from an old pal while we are over here. I see by your letters that the soldiers back home spent three days in the trenches. It is to laugh. I bet they thought it was awful, but I wonder what they would say if they had been in the real trenches for six months, under fire, in snow, ice and mud.

"Believe me, it makes one think of home whenever he has time to think. I wish we were allowtd to tell some of our experiences. I could tell you some darned hot ones about No Man's Land. I have been all through it many times and I wish to tell you that it gave me the creeps the first few times. It is ticklish when you hear the bullets whizz by, but you get used to them and get so you miss them if they do not open a machine gun on you when you go out there.

"Say Arthur, I suppose you heard about us fellows getting a seven-day furlough after six months' service in the trenches? Well, boy, I am just back from mine. I went with the first bunch and take it from me, it was some trip. We went down South among the French Alps—some place. The mountain peaks were covered with snow and in the valley the weather was just like Spring. The trip itself was great, because it relieved the tension on a man's nerves. We stopped at a first-class hotel with the best of accomodations and above all you were a free man for the time being; no military commands at all, and you could go and come when you pleased. But that is all gone now. It is good to think about, out here especially.

EVERYTHING BUT GOLF IN COE'S FAD LIST

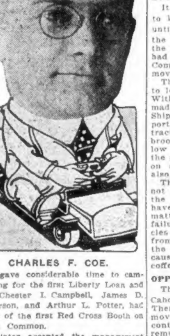
By C. F. DONNOCKER.

Charles F. Coe, manager of the Chevrolet Motor Car Company of New England, was born in Buffalo, N. Y. After graduating from the public schools he attended the Cascadilla Preparatory School, where he devoted most of his time to baseball, although his ability as an orator shows that he must have given some time to English at least. (Yet even this is a gift to some people.)

He made an enviable record as a ball player, even playing major league ball as a box artist. He delved into the newspaper game as a special writer for a news syndicate and took the trip around the world with the navy and was on the Maine with "Bob" Evans during part of the time.

While on the high seas he won the welter-weight and light-weight championship of the Navy and it is rumored that he has donned the gloves here in Boston with a well-known ex-champion, much to that person's discomfiture.

He then went with the Gould Coupler Company of Depew, N. Y., and devised a new system which attracted the attention of the Curtiss Aeroplane Motor Company with whom he went as an efficiency man, and was later made production purchasing agent. During this time he went around the country making talks on sales and organization and later devoted all his time to this work



CHARLES F. COE.

He gave considerable time to campaigning for the first Liberty Loan and with Chester I. Campbell, James D. Henderson, and Arthur L. Potter, had charge of the first Red Cross Booth on Boston Common.

He later accepted the management of the Chevrolet Motor Co. for New England. He is a tennis "fiend," although he once started to play golf but they put him off the links because he wanted to use a baseball bat. His one hobby now is listening to good stories, especially those told by John MacAlman.

REBUKES POLITICIAN AT NATURALIZATION HEARING

Providence, May 13.—The rebuke administered Theodore H. Bliss of Narragansett Pier, Representative from that town as well as member of the Town Council, by Judge Arthur L. Brown of Federal Court, when Bliss is said to have prompted a Syrian who was being naturalized, is said to have been a lesson to politicians not to meddle with the United States Court in the future. According to report Bliss was noticed whispering to the Syrian, who was evidently unable to answer questions set forth. Judge Brown noticed the attitude of the Narragansett Pier politician and after stopping the proceedings administered a stinging rebuke to Bliss and later refused to allow Bliss to be a witness in the case.

POLICE SEEKING AUTOISTS WHO SPIRITED AWAY HOGS

Providence, May 13.—Automobilists who are charged with playfully "stealing" hogs, the property of A. H. Barney of Swansea, Mass., just across the East Providence line, will be watched in the future and severely dealt with, says Police Chief Everett W. Adams of East Providence, who asserts the thefts caused a loss of $20,000 to Barney in the past year. Massachusetts State police are trying to find out where 1,000 hogs taken from the country roadway have been disposed of.

HINT WHITEWASH IN DRYDOCK INQUIRY

Rumors of an attempt being made to "unload" the Boston drydock on the Federal government were circulating in political channels today.

This was but one. Among the others were:

That the investigation of the charge that the drydock is eleven months behind the time set for its completion will be a whitewash."

That members of the Governor's Council have been urged to award $300,000 to Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins, the drydock contractors, for "the increased cost of materials and for unforeseen conditions that have arisen since the war."

That the State, by allowing certain features of the contract to lapse, has forfeited its right to proceed against the contractors for the long delay in completing the dock.

LABOR UNION CHARGES.

The "investigation" of the drydock situation was begun as the result of charges preferred by the Boston Central Labor Union. Among those charges were these:

1—That the drydock is eleven months behind time.

2—That this delay has been caused by the inefficiency of the contractors.

3—That they have been unfair to organized labor.

4—That the architect employed by the State to approve the plans for the cofferdam, which collapsed, was the business partner of the architect who prepared the plans for the contractors.

A sub-committee of the Council was appointed to investigate the charges. The "investigation" has been behind closed doors. Several witnesses have appeared before the committee, but in private. The sub-committee presented its report to the Council last week. The Council voted to keep it secret.

ATTEMPT TO TRANSFER.

It is hinted that the Council hoped to keep the report from the public until after the movement to transfer the drydock, and the contract, from the State to the Federal government had been completed. The Waterways Commission is playing a hand in this movement.

The Navy Department had agreed to lease the dock for $50,000 a year. Within a week an attempt has been made to transfer the dock to the Shipping Board. There comes the report that a plan to break the contract between the State and Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins and to allow the contracting firm to complete the dock for the Federal government on a cost-plus-profit plan basis is also part of the general movement.

The cofferdam collapsed and was not completed at the time set for in the contract. The State's officials have not taken any action in the matter, so far as is known. This failure to move is said in some circles to have saved the contractors from any action for damages that the State might have brought because of the delay in completing the cofferdam.

OPPOSED BY CONRY.

The contract price with Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins was $3,800,000. There has as yet been no official move to secure for them and the subcontractors the extra $300,000 as a remuneration for "unforeseen circumstances." It is recalled that the drydock contract was urged by the contractors themselves against the vigorous protest of Joseph A. Conry, then a member of the Port Board.

State engineers admit that "practically no work" is being done on the dock, despite the fact that the Navy Department says it ought o be compleed in a hurry.

There is also a report that the consummation of the transfer of the drydock to the Federal government may be announced as a "minor" detail of "a new plan by the government to develop more State property in South Boston."

Rubber Union Suits Make U. S. Boys Gas Proof

By BERT FORD
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

With the American Army in France, May 13.—New gas proof suits known as "balloon bibs" have just been issued to the American units on the French front in Picardy. They are made of rubberized material and resemble oilskins.

They are in one piece and the trouser legs are bound with cord to the ankles and worn under hip rubber boots. The head attachment fits snugly over the gas mask. There are rubber gloves with a thumb and a forefinger only, with the rest of the fingers incased like a fin. The long wrists are fastened with coils of cord.

The outfit makes the Yankee soldier look like a cross twixt a diver and a masked clown. Some of the men already have nicknamed the suits 'g'as union suits."

The suits are similar to those used by the English army. They are especially effective for emergency work in zones flooded with gas, and safeguard the men against he vicious mustard gas which burns the body where it finds moist spots.

MALDEN NEEDS MONEY TO REPAIR WATER MAINS

Because of the large number of broken water mains in Malden, as a result of the cold weather last Winter, when many sections of the city were entirely without water, Malden will probably have to issue bonds to repair the damage done, as all of the money in the water fund has been used up, and the work has only been started toward repairing the damage. This is the first time in the city's history that the water department has not been self-supporting in maintenance and similar work, bonds only having been issued for extension of the water service.

Worst Weed on the Farm—

As Seen and Pictured by Congressman Baer, of North Dakota

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company.

HE CAN'T SEEM TO CRUB THEM UP.

"The dandelion, spoiling the pastures and the hay," says Congressman Baer, "is a pretty bad nuisance on the farm. But the plant in this picture is worse. It's a weed with three kinds of flowers—the politician flower, 'Big Biz,' that robs the farmer through trusts of which he must buy, and through combinations through which he must sell.

"The politician flower, that acts as the servant of 'Big Biz,' and the 'kept press,' that beats the drum for both of them and praises them."

The people that see this newspaper live in cities and know little about the fight that the farmer makes all the year around.

A thousand weeds, a thousand insect pests bother him on the farm.

And worse difficulties bother him in the cities.

He must buy from big combinations that charge him all that he can pay, and a little more.

And he must sell to big combinations that pay him as little as possible.

There is nothing more disgraceful in all our American life than this fact.

The consumer pays three dollars for what the farmer produces, and the farmer gets one dollar. The other two dollars are taken by those that handle the result of the farmer's work after it leaves the farm.

The farmer will find his salvation, as all others must, in a republic, IN THE BALLOT BOX.

If he would stop listening to and shouting for ready-made political slogans, and work along common sense lines of his own mapping out, he would get rid, soon, of the particular weeds that the young farmer-Congressman of North Dakota shows in this picture.

A Lesson in American Efficiency

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company.

Acting on orders from the German government, the officers and crews of the German ships interned in American waters inflicted such damage upon the machinery of the vessels as they deemed absolutely certain to keep the ships out of service for two years. By that time the Germans thought the war would be over.

But American efficiency and American invention effected the necessary repairs in from six to eight months and at a cost of $274,000; the Germans had figured the cost of repairs at $2,000,000, and the necessary time twenty-four months.

All of these ships, except one that has been sunk, are now bearing American commerce on the seas or transporting American soldiers to Europe. The Navy Department figures that the use of these ships between the time the ships were actually repaired and the time the Germans estimated they could be repaired will be worth $240,000,000 to the government at the present rate of tonnage.

The Vaterland, one of these interned ships and the largest ship afloat, is now renamed the Leviathan. Americans are able to operate this ship at a higher rate of speed than the Germans were able to do, and do this with 200 tons of coal less a day.

The Leviathan has one American captain in place of five German captains of the Vaterland, and one American chief engineer instead of a chief engineer and five assistants that German efficiency required.

BRAIN WORK IN THE KITCHEN

As a mother you have the say of what you shall feed your family.

Dad is too busy trying to keep even and buy a home to protect you and the children's future to do more along that line than eat what is put before him.

That fifteen cent soup bone, for instance; do you boil it in time so that you can strain and cool and skim off all the fat for use in cookies or pie crust, or do you send the soup to the table swimming in grease, thereby ruining your children's complexions and stomachs and wasting good material?

Everything you cook in your household should be planned to make it go the farthest to get good results.

Help Them, Help Others

The Salvation Army asks nothing for itself. It asks you to aid the Salvation Army in order to aid others. You, in that way, put yourself "over there" in the thick of it, where this army seeks to save and serve in the hour of need.

GARRETT P. SERVISS' ARTICLE

Time-Keeping Is a Most Puzzling Problem to Many, and There Are Scores Who When It Is Sunday Noon in London Cannot Tell What Day of the Week It Is in Manila

By Garrett P. Serviss

TWO correspondents are puzzled over the apparent loss or gain of a day (loss going one way and gain going the other), that attends a trip around the earth. One says: "If a man traveled due west around the world, and it took him twelve months, he would of course be a year older, but I have heard it argued that he would be younger than if he stayed here by about half a month, because he loses time all the time."

There is perhaps no ordinary phenomenon so puzzling to the average person as time, when considered not as it concerns some fixed point on the earth, but with regard to the world as a whole. If the earth did not rotate on its axis and revolve around the sun we should probably have had no conception of time, and we certainly should have had no measure of it. There would have been neither days nor years, nor any sub-division of them.

Last Opportunity

In going once around the earth the sun travels just 360 degrees, which is the angular distance around every circle. It takes him twenty-four hours to make the circuit; consequently he travels 15 degrees in one hour. Then in one minute, which is the sixtieth part of an hour, he will travel one-quarter of a degree, or 1-1440th of the angular distance round the earth. Put these facts in the back of your mind for future reference and turn your attention for a moment to the earth. The distance round the earth, in the latitude, or thereabouts, of New York, is 18,720 miles. But, measured by angle it is 360 degrees, whence we see that one degree, in this latitude, must be the equivalent of fifty-two miles, while fifteen degrees equal 780 miles.

Now, go back again to the motion of the sun. Since he travels one-quarter of a degree in one minute, it is evident that the point where a line drawn from his centre to the centre of the earth cuts the earth's surface, in 41 degrees latitude, would in one minute be carried one-quarter of fifty-two miles, or thirteen miles, westward. In one hour its westward motion would be equal to sixty times thirteen, or 780 miles, which, as we have seen, is the equivalent of fifteen degrees of angular measurement, at the earth's surface, in about the latitude of New York.

Then, if the sun is on the meridian, or noon-line, at New York, it will be one minute of time east of the meridian at a place thirteen miles west of New York and one minute west of the meridian at a place thirteen miles east of New York. Or, to use the larger unit, fifteen degrees, we see that the noon sun at New York is one hour past noon at a place (say on a ship) 780 miles east of New York, and one hour before noon at a place 780 miles west.

Suppose, for instance, that you set out to go round the world, traveling continually eastward from New York. Or better, let the start be from Greenwich, for the reason that Greenwich has been chosen by the whole civilized world as the origin of time reckonings, so that, while the result is the same, the explanation will, in one respect, be simpler if Greenwich is the starting point. Let the journey begin at noon on Wednesday, May 1, and suppose your watch to be kept running on Greenwich time.

Loss and Gain

Consider that in traveling eastward you are going to meet the sun, and, for you, it will, every day, rise sooner and cross the meridian sooner than it would have done if you had remained at Greenwich. When you have gone fifteen degrees (780 miles in the latitude of forty-one degrees) eastward, you will have the sun on the moon-line when your watch indicates only 11 a. m. After going 180 degrees (9,360 miles in latitude forty-one), your watch time and the sun time will be twelve hours apart. And when you have completed the circuit of the earth, by traversing 360 degrees eastward, the difference will be twenty-four hours. Both watch and sun will indicate noon, but YOUR noon, by the watch, will be a whole calender day ahead of the local noon at Greenwich. If your reckoning says that it is Wednesday, May 1, the anniversary of your setting out, when you arrive you will find that the people of Greenwich call it Tuesday, April 30, for you have gained one day, on their calendar, by going round the earth against the sun's motion. If you had completed the journey in one day, or one month, or ten years instead of one year, the result would have been the same, you could not gain more or less than one day. And if, on the contrary, you had gone round the globe westward you would have lost just one calendar day. It is the angular distance that you travel, not the time spent in going that distance, which gains or loses the day for you, and once round the circuit means 360 degrees, or its time equivalent, twenty-four hours.

But just where does the change of calendar date, resulting in the gain or loss of a day, occur? It occurs on the anti-meridian of Greenwich, which runs through the Pacific Ocean, and where midnight is coincident with Greenwich noon. If you cross that line going west you skip ahead one calendar day. Say it is Sunday noon when you cross, then as soon as you are over you will call it Monday noon.

Let's Do Our Darndest, Men

By W. B. LOCKWOOD

WE'VE plunged into this world-wide war,
Our hats are in the ring,
And Pershing's over there in France
To see about the thing.
Let's back him up with all our grit,
With food and coin—and then
Let's help him more than just "a bit,"
Let's do our darndest, men.

From the sun-kissed hills of Dixie,
Through Yankee Doodle land,
From dreamy Honolulu
And its shores of drifting sand;
From all our islands in the sea,
From mountain, plain and fen,
We're pledging now the world to free,
To do our darndest, men.

And when the war is over,
And the cannon's empty mouth
Is made the home of mocking birds,
The songsters of the South,
We'll proudly tell the story
Of the fight we helped to win
By doing more than just "our bit";
We did our darndest, men.

SUFFRAGE FOR WOMEN GROWING APACE

By Elizabeth G. Evans

IF, as the wise man said, there is no new thing under the sun, it would seem that nothing new can be said upon a time-honored topic of discussion like Woman Suffrage. The prophecies of disaster which once did yeoman service as anti-suffrage arguments, have been so thoroughly confuted by experience that today it is hardly credible they were ever taken seriously. And the same fate is about to overtake other arguments which still carry weight with many persons of intelligence.

Consider, for example, the assertion that all but a trifling minority of women are opposed to the vote and that if it were granted them they would not value it. Dramatic evidence to the contrary is furnished by the recent roll call in the House of Representatives upon the Suffrage Federal Amendment in which Representatives from nineteen States whose women are wholly or partially enfranchised, 140 to 4 in favor of extending full suffrage to every woman in the nation.

Formerly Hostile

Among those who voted in the affirmative were many who, before the women of their State were enfranchised, were known to have been bitterly hostile. But they believe that a sufficiently large number of their women constituents hold the vote to be an issue of such importance that a representative who failed to voice their views would commit political suicide. Surely this is evidence which should dispose for good and all of the prophecy that when women have the vote they cease to value it.

But it may be argued that a comparatively small minority of enthusiasts might avail to thus terrorize their representatives, and that the majority of women are nevertheless indifferent to the vote or actively hostile. This argument can be likewise answered out of experience. For it is a matter of record that enfranchised women use the vote about as generally as men do; while no sentiment has ever developed in any suffrage State for repeal.

As further evidence upon the same point, take the vote in Congress of the States physically contigious to those whose women citizens are enfranchised, and whose residents are thus in a position to know at first hand how suffrage works and what women voters think about it. The Representatives of twelve neighbor-suffrage States voted more than 3 to 1 for the suffrage amendment, while only two States similarly situated gave adverse majorities.

The vote of two States—Vermont and Florida—which divided equally for and against the amendment, furnished additional evidence in the same direction. For in these two States women have recently been given municipal franchise and the effect of this is registered in the vote of their delegations in Congress.

Bay State Alone

Massachusetts, once pioneer in every forward humanitarian movement, is today the only State out of all New England which cast a majority vote against equal rights to all citizens. Maine voted solidly for the Federal suffrage amendment, and so did New Hampshire and Rhode Island. Connecticut voted for it 3 to 2, and Vermont divided its delegation evenly.

Is Massachusetts rightly represented by its representatives in Congress?

Too long has our nation been content to deal with this matter locally. The "self-evident proposition" that all just governments derive their powers from the consent of the governed, affirmed at the birth of our nation, is the issue. President Wilson declares, now being fought out on the battlefields of Europe. And it is up to the United States to square itself with its own principles, prepared to take its place at the world's council board, as the world's leading democracy.

LOVE PIRATE HAS LITTLE USE FOR HONOR

By Winifred Black

"I DON'T like good women," said the girl with the bobbed hair and the short, rough skirt and the big shoes and the large horn spectacles. "They are so hard."

"Aren't they!" sighed the slim girl in vampire green, with the slick black hair wrapped around her head like a satin bandage, and the jade earrings and the outrageous high-heeled slippers. "Oh, aren't they!"

Thus encouraged, the young person with the bobbed hair went on:

"And I hereby confess it openly."

I poured myself another cup of tea, and propped the paper up against the sugar bowl and listened quite shamelessly to the conversation.

Of course, I knew they wanted me to listen. They were of the ultra-modern type, who think it quite the proper thing to shout their sorrows and their joys into the ears of the multitude, and who are always a little restless unless they can get some one—almost any one—to listen to the stories of their lives.

"It Was Terrible"

"Now, this woman I'm thinking of," said Bobbed Hair, "when she found out that I was in love with her husband, called me to her house and told me I must keep away from him. She said she had two children and they were very fond of her husband and it would be a terrible thing for them if I took him away from her. And she said she thought I was selfish and also very foolish.

"She told me his infatuation for me wouldn't last, and that when it was gone I would be sorry that I'd made a fool of myself. It was terrible for her to talk so to me. There she sat in her beautiful home, beautifully dressed, with her lovely children right in the next room, and when I thought of him coming to her and pretending to care for her I just couldn't bear it—it made me furious—I had all I could do to keep from trying to injure her some way. And there she sat as hard as a stone. I think she rather liked seeing me miserable. If she hadn't been so hard with me I would have gone away, but, of course, as it was"——

Eyes That Lured

"Oh, of course," sighed the Sinuous One, jangling her green earrings and darkening her eyes tigerishly. "They must expect us to fight for the right to live our own lives, these good women, and yet every one is so sorry for us. How long will it be before the world throws off these old, stale, worn-out conventions?"

Some one tapped on the glass at the window and as I looked up I saw standing outside the pale wraith of a man I used to know. Once he was a real man and loved his wife and his children and had a place in the community and could hold up his head among his fellow-men.

Bobbed Hair looked up at him and nodded.

"Here he is!" she said. "I must run along."

And while she plumped out of the room on her heavy, modern, common-sense shoes, I noticed that the Sinuous One leaned her head languishingly on her hand and darted her eyes tigerishly through the window at the wraith of a man who stood there waiting for his bobbed-haired Eve, with the rather slovenly effect in fig leaves.

I wonder if Bobbed Hair would have thought the Sinuous One was hard and cruel if she had seen her making eyes at her wraith, or if it's only when women are honest and good that she thinks they are hard and cruel?
